Urbanitis Killing Emblem

By DIANE JANOWSKI

The provincial flower is taking a beating because of urban expansion.

An infection is striking and killing Pacific flowering dogwood trees in natural stands in areas where they have been disturbed by residential development.

★ ★ ★

Most losses to date, according to the insect and disease survey of the federal Forest Research Laboratory on West Burnside Road, have been observed at lower elevations on Vancouver Island, the Gulf Islands and the Lower Fraser Valley.

Invaded Natural Stands Need Care

"It's wherever built-up areas have occurred," said Alex Molnar, head of the survey. "We've been aware of this for several years now, but it's increasing because the factors that bring it about have been intesnsifying."

The infection first occurs in the form of stem cankers — a crackling of the bark that allows an infectious fungus disease to eat into the tree.

It girdles the trunk, killing the bark and underlying wood. This cuts off the tree's food supply, causing a deterioration in flower clusters and leaves and leading eventually to its death, Molnar said.

Although little can be done to save the tree once the infection has become firmly established in it, early treatment may prove successful, Molnar said. The tree should be examined annually for cankers and any wound should be cleaned and treated with a pruning type of paint.

Molnar said the disease can be prevented if the tree is allowed to adapt slowly to exposed conditions. This can be done by the gradual removal of surrounding vegetation, usually over a three year period.

Trees grown in commercial nurseries and forest trees established in open areas are not affected by the infection and although many dogwoods have been killed by it, the species is not threatened with extinction.

"We're not saying the tree is being wiped out," said Molnar. "We're just saying that if people want dogwoods around, they'd better care for them."

Tug Pickets Stay 'Regardless'

Labor Defiant Of Court Action

- Tahsis Company sawmill closes down. Page 34

VANCOUVER (CP) — The B.C. Federation of Labor said Friday that tugboat picket lines will be maintained "regardless of the consequences" in the face of a number of contempt of court verdicts, one of which resulted in the sentencing of tug guild chief negotiator Arnie Davis to six months in jail.

"The picket lines will be maintained until this dispute is settled through negotiation of an honorable collective agreement," a labor statement said. "If guild pickets are removed forcibly or through jailings, leaders of the trade union movement, including members of this executive council, will take their place on the picket lines."

Said federation secretary Ray Haynes:

"The labor movement must maintain its trade union principles, regardless of the consequences."

Mr. Justice T. A. Dohm passed sentence Friday after finding Davis guilty Thursday of one count of contempt and the Canadian Merchant Service Guild, the towboat men's union, guilty of two.

★ ★ ★

Federation president Al Staley of Victoria described the jailing of Davis as "an extremely grave situation in which citizens are being persecuted for acting in accordance with their conscience and in accordance with principles recognized in the universal declaration of human rights."

The charges against Davis and the guild stem from contempt of an injunction granted MacMillan Bloedel that prohibited picketing at the company's pulp mill at Powell River, about 80 miles north of here.

★ ★ ★

In another case Friday, Mr. Justice J. A. MacDonald found the guild in contempt of an injunction granted Canadian Forest Products Ltd which banned picketing at its Eburne Sawmill in Vancouver. Two members of the guild were fined $25 each.

F. G. (Tony) Peskett, president of the Employers Council of B.C., commenting on Davis' sentence, said "we don't want to see damage suits or people going into jail."

"We want to see people back at work. There is no joy in seeing Capt. Davis go to jail. It is a very, very unhappy situation."

Despite the court decisions, negotiations were expected to

To Avoid Drift to General Strike

Laxton Pleads for Truce

By IAN STREET
Colonist Legislature Reporter

CHILLIWACK — A labor-management truce was called for here Friday night to prevent what an NDP spokesman called the "unplanned and unintended" drift into a general strike in B.C.

John Laxton, the retiring provincial president of the party, told the 6,000 delegates at the opening session of the party's annual convention that the present labor-management situation is so serious that unless a truce is reached "we are in for a very very bad summer."

★ ★ ★

"We seem to be drifting into an unplanned and unintended general work stoppage because the rank and file union members have simply had enough bullying and harassment under ... Social Credit legislation.

"If something doesn't break soon, there will be labor-management explosion that will leave a scar on the province's economy for years to come."

Laxton told delegates there is only one way to settle a labor dispute and that is by rational discussion around a bargaining table.

"Settlements cannot be achieved by putting people in jail nor by seeking large damage awards or fines. When the battle is over, the parties have to go on living and working together in harmony. That is one significant fact of life that management must never forget.

"I would therefore like to suggest that there be a truce in all labor-management litigation for at least one month or whatever period can be agreed upon with both sides withdrawing from court in all disputes and undertaking to meet each other every day if necessary in the truce period to see if settlements can be reached."

Laxton ended his speech with an appeal to the convention to pass a resolution drawn along these or similar lines. He later told reporters that a special executive subcommittee was drafting an emergency resolution dealing with the labor situation which will be placed before delegates this morning.

Caucus Policy Paper Riles Union Delegates

Colonist Staff Reporter

CHILLIWACK — A statement signed by all 12 members of the NDP caucus stating they take direction only from the party membership and not from union leaders drew loud protest from labor delegates attending the party's annual convention here Friday night.

The document was read to the convention by Dave Barrett, the 39-year-old social worker who is seeking the party leader's job at a leadership convention here today.

In the debate which followed, one delegate representing the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers said the caucus statement was a slander on all trade unions because it suggested that unions do not reflect the wishes of the working people of the province.

Another angry labor delegate said the statement was tantamount to a charge that the trade union movement was becoming "an iron block around the ankles of the party." The delegate, who said he represented the plumbers' union, said "As a trade unionist and a socialist let me say that socialism without trade unionism is like a man without a wife. When the trade union movement is being attacked by the govern-

Swiss Vote on Ousting of Aliens

ZURICH (UPI) — Swiss voters Friday cast their first ballots in a three-day national referendum to constitutionally limit the number of resident foreigners to 10 per cent of the population.

Supporters of the Schwarzenbach initiative urged a yes vote to save Switzerland's national character from destruction. Almost 1,000,000 foreigners live here in a 6,000,000 population.

The referendum's name comes from James Schwarzenbach, a 50-year-old deputy in parliament from Zurich who led the forces that collected 50,000 signatures in order to put the measure on the ballot.

If passed, the measure would force the government to supervise the expulsion of over 300,000 foreigners within the next four years.

Deliberate expulsion of ordinary working people and their families could severely harm Switzerland's international reputation, disturb relations with Italy — where the greatest number of the foreigners here originated — and complicate negotiations with the Common Market this fall, opponents said.

Postmen Get Recess To Work Up Package

OTTAWA (Special) — The federal government has given the 27,000-member council of postal unions a weekend recess of three days in which to prepare a package of counter-proposals on the numerous issues still outstanding in the long-simmering postal dispute.

During mediation sessions last week, the government put forward a new package offer, which included a revised wage proposal. The unions, however, have apparently refused to counter at all, but have insisted on dealing with the issues in dispute on an item-by-item rather than package basis.

Wage-Brake Reaction Mainly Cool

WINNIPEG (CP) — Provincial finance ministers pledged varying degrees of support Friday for a federal program of pay restraint as a weapon against inflation.

The scheme aims to keep pay-increase settlements this year to a maximum six per cent.

However, Russell Bell, research director for the 1,650,000-member Canadian Labor Congress, called the ceiling unacceptable to working men.

★ ★ ★

Bell said the CLC will oppose the guideline "as strongly as possible."

Jean Beaudry, CLC executive vice-president, in Winnipeg for a meeting of the Manitoba federation of labor, said:

"It is evident that the government has declared open war on labor."

In Ottawa, Gerald W. Baldwin, Conservative House leader, interrupted a Commons agriculture debate on a point of privilege after hearing the news.

He protested that Benson should have made a statement of this importance in the Commons itself.

He also objected that both Benson and Prime Minister Trudeau had implied in response to opposition questions earlier in the week that the government did not intend to introduce such a policy.

Max Saltsman (Waterloo), the NDP financial critic, said in an interview that although he had heard rumors of the government's plan earlier in the week he had "found it very hard to believe they would be so blatantly anti-labor."

Benson said compliance could be enforced by federal

General Strike Feared, Truce Urged

In an interview Laxton said the statement issued earlier Friday by Ray Haynes on behalf of the B.C. Federation of Labor following the jailing of Capt. Arne Davis for contempt in connection with the towboat dispute, "sounded like something out of Czechoslovakia at the time of the invasion."

★ ★ ★

Laxton, a lawyer who has represented the IWA in court actions connected with current labor disputes said: "I don't think the public is aware how widespread the feelings of anger and frustration are at the grassroots level in the trade union movement. They feel they are right up again the barricades."

Ropert Strachan, MLA for Cowichan-Malahat and a member of the executive committee drafting the emergency resolution, said later it was possible that it would reflect the appeal for a truce made by Laxton but added "I wouldn't predict it."

★ ★ ★

Tom Berger, who is stepping down as provincial leader of the party following his defeat at the polls in last August's election, received a standing ovation from delegates when he endorsed the leadership bid of David Barrett, who was selected House Leader by the NDP caucus last September.

"I leave with a glad heart," Berger said, "and I know he is going to make a damn fine leader."

Berger recalled that a slogan used by the Social Credit party in the last election was "Take-home pay with Bennett or strike pay with Berger." He told the cheering delegates at the convention: "Well there is no take-home pay with Bennett. There is strike pay, there is lockout pay, there are fines to pay with Bennett and I'm afraid there is going to be hell to pay as well."

Cheers Ring For Davis

CHILLIWACK — Delegates attending the NDP annual convention here voted unanimously Friday night to send a message of sympathy to towboat negotiator Capt. Arnold Davis who is in jail.

Amid cheers that greeted the motion from the floor, NDP House leader Dave Barrett grabbed a microphone to say emotionally that he was seconding the motion.

"We deplore the course being used against the working people of the province. We will stand behind them in this instance because we know they are right. We will support them 100 per cent."

Allied Security So Leaky Reds Had 24-Hour Notice

SAIGON (UPI) — A high-ranking North Vietnamese army defector said Friday the allied offensive in Cambodia stopped the communists from launching a general offensive in South Vietnam.

The defector, Lt.-Col. Nguyen Van Nang, 46, also told a Saigon news conference that since early 1969, allied security has been so leaky the Communist region that included a precinct of Saigon and parts of three provinces to the west.

Nang said the Communists had planned a general offensive for May, but after the allies destroyed their supply depots they were unable to carry it out. In addition, Communist troops in Cambodia were diverted against the Cambodian army in an attempt to restore Prince Norodom Sihanouk to power.

Nang, speaking through an interpreter, said he had been deputy commander of a Communist region that 24 hours advance notice of B-52 bomber strikes.

Federal mediator William P. Kelly said Friday it was possible that a contract proposal acceptable to both sides would be drawn up in the next three or four days.

The masters, mates and engineers have been on strike since May 3 in a dispute over safety and manning aboard some of the province's 400 towboats.

Gordon Dowding, NDP MLA for Burnaby-Edmonds, described the injunctions which have followed the towboat strike as a legal abomination, forcing the freeman to work against his will.

In his address to a labor rally Thursday night in Prince Rupert, he exhorted trade unionists to political action since labor hasn't been present in sufficient strength at the making of laws to ensure that they are just.

Meanwhile, following a Friday meeting in Victoria with eight labor leaders, Attorney-General Leslie Peterson said further talks will be held next week between both sides in the construction industry dispute in efforts to get vital school and hospital construction under way.

He described Friday's meeting as "preliminary."

Trerise Fourth In Fast Mile

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Norm Trerise of Vancouver, was one of five milers Friday night to run a sub-four-minute mile in the annual Trilight meet.

Trerise was fourth with a lifetime best of 3:59.1.

The winner was Roscoe Divine, University of Oregon senior, in 3:56.3, also a career best.

Israeli Assaults Mark War Date

TEL AVIV (UPI) — Israel marked the third anniversary of the opening of the 1967 Middle East war Friday by launching against Egyptian targets on the Suez Canal its heaviest continuous aerial attack since the six-day formal conflict ended — 11 hours of continuous daylight raids and another 3½ hours after dark.

Labor Rips Ceiling

and provincial governments through their influence over business and labor.

Benson said governments have "a lot of purchasing power" and could refuse to buy from companies which grant pay increases in excess of the limit.

The federal program, presented to the federal-provincial finance conference in the name of John Young, head of the prices and incomes commission, was introduced against the opposition of organized labor.

The target limit would be reduced for settlements covering the next two years — perhaps to ranges of five per cent and four per cent — if the rate of price inflation slows as authorities hope.

A communique issued by the conference outlined reactions that ranged from enthusiastic backing on the part of Quebec and Saskatchewan to strong reservations by Manitoba and no comment from British Columbia.

Ontario treasurer Charles MacNaughton, whose province has most workers, expressed "general sympathy" with the plans.

Young said substantial provincial co-operation would be essential to the program's success. Most Canadian workers and the companies that employ them come under provincial jurisdiction.

Limit Drink Quantity Or Face Consequences

Your Good Health

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My trouble, I think, is tea. I can drink six or seven cups a day, but when I do it seems to affect my kidneys. When I go without tea, the trouble seems to go away. Can it be something more serious affecting my kidneys? — C. B.

Tea, like coffee, is a diuretic, meaning that it stimulates the flow of urine. Some people find that a single cup promptly has this effect; others can drink more than that without appreciable difficulty.

It could be that you will have to limit the amount you drink, or put up with the consequences. The amount of fluid itself has some effect, of course — six or seven cups is putting up in the region of a quart from this source alone.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My son is six months old and since birth has had to have casts every two weeks for a club foot.

The doctor tells me when he is a year old he will have to have an operation. Please tell me why he must suffer for another six months? Why can't they do it now? With men going to the moon, why in God's name must a child suffer so? Please won't you help me? If nothing more than to understand the why of it all? — Mrs. S. J.

For your little boy's sake, as well as your own, I suggest you stop over-emoting and try to understand the condition.

It's too bad he has a club foot. But aren't you glad he doesn't have leukemia, brain damage, congenital blindness, or a lot of other things we can't cure even if men have gon to the moon? Aren't you glad he doesn't have two club feet. Som 40 per cent of babies with club boot do.

Club foot occurs in a certain number of babies, and the cause is not certain. Since it can occur to more than one in a family, heridity may be a factor. Another suspicion involves the position of the baby's foot before birth.

Whatever the cause, early treatment is essential, but it is effective, and while the casts are a nuisance, I think you are very much overdoing things by calling it "suffering." Of course, it's no fun — but it's tolerable.

The feet, you must remember, are, mechanically, one of the most intricate parts of the body, and it is foolhardy to try to reshape a deformed foot all at once. Correction must be done little by little, with a series of casts. Furthermore, you don't want any scar tissue which can interfere with normal and even growth.

Parents should be warned — as you evidently have been — that correction, if it is to bring best results, has to be slow.

Four-Way Partitioning within Year?

Cambodia Waits for Knife

Colonist Los Angeles Times Service

WASHINGTON — Some United States policy-level officials fear the most likely outlook for beleaguered Cambodia now is de facto dismemberment by its more powerful neighbors.

Sooner rather than later — one estimate is six to 12 months — these officials expect Cambodia to be balkanized into:

● A central area controlled by the present pro-Western Lon Nol government, or its successor in Phnom Penh.

● A southern tier run by a firmly entrenched South Vietnamese force that will consider Phnom Penh its military protectorate.

● A Northwest section controlled by Thailand, partly to watch over Thai-speaking Cambodians but also to keep out the ambitious South and North Vietnamese.

● The Northeast provinces run by North Vietnam, as at present, with ousted Prince Norodom Sihanouk back to rally the rural nationalists there for a civil war.

On Thursday, President Nixon said the South Vietnamese recognize their primary objective is in their own country, but their activity in Cambodia in the future will be determined "by communist action." He also said American logistic and air support would come out as planned June 30, but that there "will be air missions to interdict the movement of enemy troops and material."

★ ★ ★

Officials agreed that under this formula, American tactical air support could come out June 30 and go back on July 1 in support of South Vietnamese troops who could do a similar border-straddling act for the sake of presidential veracity.

The only limitation on South Vietnamese operations thus appears to be that nothing done in Cambodia should impede Vietnamization and the American pullout from their country.

Peru Quake Toll 50,000

Circus Saved Many Children

By WILLIAM H. GORISHEK

CHIMBOTE, Peru. (UPI) — The fact a circus was playing outside Yungay saved many of the children of that city and nearby Ranrahirca from death in the Sunday earthquake that has taken as many as 50,000 lives.

Augustin Rojo, 55, and his two daughters, airlifted from Ranrahirca to the port city of Chimbote Thursday, said close to 1,000 persons from Yungay and Ranrahirca who fled to safety in the hills when the earthquake struck were mostly children attending a circus outside town.

At Yungay, where only about 2,500 of a population of 20,000 were known to have survived, only the tops of palm trees were visible above the mud.

Presidential palace press spokesman Augusto Zimmerman hiked his original 30,000 dead estimate to a possible 40,000. But the UN mission chief in Peru, Anthony Balinsky, estimated the death toll at 50,000 in an official report to his headquarters in New York.

Military commanders in charge of the disaster zone reported the threat of epidemics largely controlled because of quick treatment of early cases of typhoid and typhus. Massive inoculation and other measurers were used effectively, they said.

But in Huaraz, 33 miles from Yungay, a peasant operating a radio said there was talk of bulldozing the rubble of the wrecked homes into a pile and burning it because of fear of disease.

The city of 80,000 was reported 90 per cent destroyed.

The first of five Caribou aircraft left Trenton, Ont., air base Friday night to aid quake victims.

The other four leave Trenton today.

A Hercules aircraft, loaded with tents and two x-ray machines, will also leave today from Ottawa.

James Walker, parliamentary secretary to Prime Minister Trudeau, said the government was continuing to "examine other means" of aiding the earthquake victims.

Earlier this week, Trudeau announced the government was contributing $25,000 to the Canadian Red Cross to assist in relief activities in Peru.

Giant U.S. Air Force planes joined the mercy airlift into the quake-devastated Callejon de Huaylas Valley Friday.

Election Fraud Charged

QUEBEC CITY (UPI) — The Parti Quebecois, which wants French-speaking Quebec to secede from Canada, will fight the last provincial elections in court, charging fraud at the polls, party chief Rene Levesque said Friday.

The party will file court challenges Monday against three newly-elected members from Montreal of the national assembly, the Quebec provincial legislature, and file more lawsuits against others later, said Levesque.

He said English-speaking non-citizens were allowed to vote in Montreal, among other irregularities.

Books, Sofa, Mahogany In Soyuz 9

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet cosmonauts Andrian Nikolayev and Vitaly Sevastianov circled the earth Friday in a luxury class spaceship fitted with a sofa, bookshelves and mahogany woodwork.

The cosmonauts' Soyuz 9 ship, now in the fourth day of a flight that may run a record length, was described in the Soviet Army daily Red Star as a large, two-compartment ship like a cozy sea captain's cabin.

"A convenient sofa stands at one end of the cabin," Red Star said. "Opposite it is an original working office with a table and sideboard, finished in mahogany. They are handsome and harmonious."

Flack Bill May Shrink

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Nixon administration has ordered all federal agencies to report how much money they are spending on public relations activities and, in effect, to show cause why the figure should not be cut by 25 or even 50 per cent.

B.C. Test Case

Tenant Wins Rental Scrap

VANCOUVER (CP) — A landlord's effort to evict a tenant has been blocked by Small Claims Court Judge G. S. Levey in the first case heard under British Columbia's new Landlord and Tenant Act.

The judge refused an application by Rosenthal Holdings to evict a tenant of the downtown Orwell Hotel because he refused to pay a rent increase.

The tenant, Lewis Williams, is president of the Downtown Tenants Association.

Williams' lawyer, Jermone Paradis, said the dismissal of the eviction application means the start of a "definition of legal rights" for tenants under the act, passed at the last session of the B.C. legislature.

★ ★ ★

Under a section of the act, a landlord cannot regain possession of a tenant's premises if it appears to the judge that "notice to quit was given because of the tenant's attempt to secure or enforce his legal rights."

Levey's ruling stated he was satisfied the reason for Williams' resistance to what the notice to quit was the judge considered improper rent increase notices, Paradis said.

Subs, Satellites Eyed For Arctic Forces

OTTAWA (CP) — Nuclear submarines and satellite surveillance are suggested as additions to Canada's sovereignty-defending forces in the Arctic in a Commons defence subcommittee report to be considered next week.

The 90-page report, prepared by the defence committee's subcommittee on maritime forces, deals with Canadian sea power possibilities for the period 1973 to 1983.

It will be examined by the full defence committee beginning Monday.

Subcommittee Chairman Keith Penner (L-Thunder Bay) said in an interview Friday the report's recommendations are based on the belief that the government intends to take defence of Canada's Arctic sovereignty seriously.

Improvement of the Ballot

THE ABSENCE of candidates' party affiliations from ballots has been, through all the years of Confederation, something of a paradox. The people have voted not nearly as much for Harry Smith, 22 Canary Street, Crunchville, haberdasher, as for Harry Smith, the local Liberal (or Conservative or whatever) candidate.

As H. McD. Clokie wrote in his book Canadian Government and Politics, "The whole parliamentary system is understood to rest on the fact that candidates are actually sponsored by political parties and that in casting his ballot the voter is displaying a party preference even more than choosing between individual men. In practice, then, the right to vote for representatives takes the form of a right to choose between the nominees of the different parties — with the occasional opportunity of voting for an independent candidate and the ever-present option of abstaining from any choice at all . . . The attention of the public, when it can take part in politics, is focused on the contest between political parties . . ."

There is good reason, therefore, for the government to include in a new elections act which Parliament is soon to consider a provision for inclusion of party affiliation beside a candidate's name on the ballot. This is a sensible modification, just like the proposed printing of the ballots in black with white circles beside the names where voters may place any clear mark — not just an X — without disqualification.

The sense is less easy to see, however, in the proposal that the party-affiliation label will be available only to those running for "recognized national political groups" with at least 75 candidates in the field.

Surely if the voter is to be given this aid in identification of candidates of the major parties, he is equally entitled to it if he chooses to cast his ballot for someone else. One gets the impression that it is not the voter, however, who is being considered, but the parties already well established.

The Cost of Commissions

TWO YEARS AGO the royal commission on the status of women appeared surprised that so few men attended its hearings. Chairman Ann Francis said the hearings should be equally interesting to men since what affected women would inevitably affect men. We remarked at the time that (considering the record of royal commissions) there could be grave doubt that this inquiry would affect anyone.

The doubt remains as the commission approaches the end of its days with a report expected by early fall. But if the study turns out to have no great effects, at least the commissioners can be commended for keeping the cost "below average" at an estimated $1,779,869 for 3½ years of work.

It is a coincidence that recently the parliamentary secretary to the prime minister answered several questions about royal commissions by a Nova Scotia MP, Robert C. Coates, providing some comparisons.

The longest inquiry: The royal commission on pilotage, appointed in November, 1962, and still in progress.

The most costly: The "bi and bi" commission, which completed its work last March 31 at a cost to that date of $8,603,078.

The shortest and least expensive: A commission on rentals in Jasper and Banff parks in 1950, which presented its report after five days and cost $822.

Recipe for a Perfect Heart

SPEAKING IN THE PHILIPPINES last month internationally famous South African heart transplant surgeon Professor Chris Barnard pointed up the unhappy fact that almost any normal man is a potential candidate for heart trouble to some degree.

There were, he said, some individuals who did possess perfect hearts—but not many. Typical of this breed, he said, would be a man who is effeminate, lacking in physical and mental alertness, without drive, ambition or competitive spirit and who never has a deadline to meet.

He would have a poor appetite and subsist only on fruits and vegetables laced with whale oil and corn oil, have a distaste for tobacco, spurn ownership of a radio or television set, would probably have a full head of hair, be of scrawny build and possess an unathletic body. He would also have a low income, low blood pressure and a low level of cholesterol.

In other words, the man who doesn't hanker to get ahead, doesn't eat rich foods, doesn't smoke, exercise, watch television or worry about money or anything else, has a better than average chance of avoiding heart ailments.

Though this is hardly heartening news to those who don't meet all these requirements, they might at least derive some satisfaction from the suspicion that those who do would seem to be half dead already.

Decisive Years for Mexico

A Drive to Emulate Japan

By COLIN McGLASHAN

MEXICO is a staggeringly young country. Well over half the population is under 20. At Volkswagen's new plant in Puebla, the average age of the 3,000 workers is 20: the dollar a day earned by apprentices often makes them their families' highest-ever wage-earner.

The young are reared on a heroic history and the rhetoric of socialist revolution. They grow up to find politics controlled by a middle-class bureaucracy that hates dissent. The mixture is explosive. Eighteen months ago it led to a massacre.

The student movement of 1968 started with fights and rivalry between two schools, brutally broken up by the granaderos, Mexico's riot police. The students forgot their differences to build a movement around police brutality and the laws against "social dissolution," traditionally used to jail independent trade union leaders and other dissenters. Within three months several hundred thousand people were marching down the Paseo de la Reforma for the first time since the Revolution. The Olympic Games were due to start: the government sent in heavily-armed troops. Officially, 39 were killed. Reliable estimates are that 500 students and bystanders died in a hail of bullets. Thousands more were arrested: at least 100 are still jailed without trial.

The movement was smashed. It has vanished almost without trace. The grievances behind it survive and fester, and they're not confined to the young. The generation gap is narrowed here. The students' parents shared their concerns for the fabric of society.

"They were in a movement in which we believed," says an affluent and conservative lawyer. "We don't like the industrial culture, the slavery of the man to his products. We cried and we grieved with the youths who were killed."

Where Brazil is crushed by a repressive military dictatorship, El Salvador owned by 14 families, Colombia held back by a rich, conservative Roman Catholic hierarchy, Mexico dealt with the army, the landowners and Rome — the classic Latin American millstones — a generation ago.

In the fields where it is its own master, progress is staggering. Fifteen years ago it imported food. Now — in spite of having only 11 per cent of land fit for agriculture, and most of that at the mercy of droughts — it is an exporter. Fifteen million acres of once desert land in Sonora now produce more than half the country's wheat. New strains of dwarf corn developed in its tropical regions grow across Afro-Asia. Latin America's largest hydro-electric project is going up at Malpaso. The rich swamp lands of the southeast are being drained to produce three crops a year.

Priorities are right: 8 per cent of the budget on defence, 37 per cent on education. But with population growing at 3 per cent a year, even that isn't enough. And it needs to find half a million new jobs a year to stand still.

The dilemmas of under-development remain as real and as sharp as in Afro-Asia. As one U.S. analyst here puts it, the decisions that count are made in Washington: tariffs, quotas, raw-material prices. And the rich countries, says Alejandro Carrilo, editor of the government newspaper, El Nacional, still defend their industrial cathedral by discriminating against the poor. "We've seen nothing very concrete come out of the promises they've made. They leave us the crumbs of industrial production. When we try to produce goods that can compete, tariffs stop them. We are still part of the Third World."

He writes off tourism as "the golden legend: if you analyse it, you find the cream of the tourist trade is not going into the hands of Mexicans. We get the fringe benefits. We can't rely on tourism as a main source of revenue."

The trouble is that tourism is a main source of revenue, and growing. Most of the visitors are from the United States. They fly in by American Airlines or Braniff, stay at the Hilton or the Sheraton, drive a Hertz or Avis hire-car, eat at an Aunt Jemima's Pancake House or a Shakey's Pizza parlor, shop at Woolworth, Sanborns or Sears Roebuck. The profits go back home.

More than 1,000 U.S. companies operate in Mexico. They dominate the consumer goods market — food processing, cars, fridges, cosmetics — and its $275 million a year worth of advertising. "Look around this room," said a teen-age girl angrily. "Nothing here is Mexican, except the food you're eating. We don't own anything in the country any more, the gringos are taking it all."

Advocates of foreign investment argue that Mexico must learn from foreign technology so as to progress to compete with it. The trouble is that the Third World has to take the technology it is given, and tends to be obsolescent. One example was the brave but disastrous attempt to found an industry making radio tubes: as it got under way, along came the transistor.

There is also Mexico's industrial pride: its motor industry. The machines in the ring of 15 car-making plants around the capital are new and expensive. They are not, however, those used in Detroit. They are specially designed for a low-production, high-cost and therefore inefficient car industry. Eight motor companies rushed into Mexico in the early '60s to compete for a market totalling 100,000 units a year — the minimum economic run for mass-production of one car model. The result is that a Ford Mustang, for example, in spite of wage-rates one-eighth of Detroit's, costs almost twice the price.

One efficient car firm using the latest machinery could, according to U.S. experts, produce a minicar for $600 or less. It would then be able to compete with Detroit in the same way as the Japanese, who have piled up a billion-dollar favorable trade gap with the U.S. — the largest the Americans have ever had with any nation.

By law, two-thirds of each car must be made in Mexico. A look at the assembly line of one of the largest car factories reveals it isn't. "No, of course we don't make 65 per cent here," admits the works manager, "but it's important to tell the government we do, or they'd close the plant." Says Edmundo Flores, one of Latin America's leading economists, "The auto industry is not Mexican, and it's never going to be Mexican."

Meanwhile, an industry that was seen by the government as the passport to industrialised-nation status comes close to crippling the economy. One estimate is that it has cost close to $1,200 million. To contemplate this tragedy from the Mexican side of the development gap is at best to suspect the industrial nations don't intend to encourage possible competitors: at worst, it is to wonder if exploitation is not ineradicable.

But perhaps nothing can keep Mexico back from identity and economic independence. Its immense vitality, its passionate nationalism, its individual and collective desire to succeed will drive it on to emulate Japan. "There is no question we will swing it like the Japanese," says Edmundo Flores. "We had our great reforms before the Cold War, so the Americans couldn't interfere with us like they did with the Cubans. We are going to do every imaginable thing to pacify the gringos. Why shouldn't we?

"We have better technicians than anywhere in Latin America. Industry is growing by leaps and bounds. In a couple of years, we will be making watches, we will be making cars. Expensive and badly made, but that's always the beginning. The Japanese, when you go into their history — God, have they made mistakes. What matters is the batting average. We will imitate badly, like they did 30 years ago. Then perhaps some genius will invent the equivalent of a Sony TV."

What does seem certain is that if Mexico can't cross the development gap between rich and poor nations in the seventies, there will have to be some changes in the rules.

Agreement Difficult

The Germanies' Subtle Differences

By ALFRED SCHROEDER from Bonn

GOVERNMENTAL public relations managers here are losing sleep over the problem of how to tell the world about the apparently unsurmountable differences between the two Germanies — why East Germany insists on diplomatic recognition before any progress, and why Bonn cannot do just that.

Reports from the foreign ministry and the federal press and information office based on the world's press, radio and television coverage of last month's second inter-German summit in Kassel show that the demonstrations of left and right-wing groups on the fringes of the meeting made more and higher headlines than the historic political event itself.

Such events provided better visuals for TV and can be described in great detail by the writing press. The incident of the East German flag being torn down and cut to pieces by three youths is better news than the behind-closed-doors meeting, and Communists fighting neo-Nazis in Kassel's public squares make better headlines.

A high-ranking information official in Bonn sighed: "The world doesn't understand the intricacies of inter-German relations, all its subtle aspects and political connotations. All they want to know is if the Germans are going to keep peace or start another war — among themselves or together against others."

Chancellor Willy Brandt and East German Premier Willi Stoph could — despite the deep gulf between their positions — take such fear away from the world.

Brandt gave the signal in Kassel when he said: "Never again shall a war be started from German territory." And Stoph cannot help but agree.

★ ★ ★

The Communist leader put some very pointed questions to the Social-Democrat chancellor, questions loaded with political dynamite: "Are you prepared to co-operate in a European security conference, with all states on the continent taking part as equals? Are you prepared to respect and recognize the existing European borders? Will you conduct a foreign policy of non-interference? Are you prepared to assist balanced disarmament? Are you, above all, ready to come to contractual agreements formally recognizing the German Democratic Republic?"

Chained to the line of present West German policy, Brandt answered the last question in the negative. The others were spiked with hooks and nails.

Brandt naturally was looking for positive replies himself when he posed a series of questions aimed at Stoph on a long list of proposals put on the conference table to relax tensions and normalize relations. But he was told categorically: "Recognition first, and then talks."

"I am encouraged by the fact that there are some points where we agree," Brandt said. "For instance, the principles of non-aggression, respecting territorial integrity and borders, non-interference, disarmament, and arms limitation."

He emphasized that Bonn was favoring a carefully-prepared European security conference and vowed to respect European borders. "The federal government won't leave anyone to take over the lead in efforts to bring peace and security to Europe," he told the East German premier.

After these basic agreements were stated at the conference table (and during private discussions) optimists were hopeful they would go into a communique.

But the two German leaders could not agree on a written statement of their positions. In fact, they couldn't even come up with a fixed plan on how to continue the dialogue which had started two months earlier in the East German city of Erfurt.

They parted without knowing if and when they would meet again, and with both agreeing that the other side needed "a pause to think."

But political observers here in Bonn and in Berlin gravely doubt that such a pause would result in removal of obstacles. East Berlin would hardly get its recognition at first try, and Bonn won't change its position that such a recognition could at the most be the final step following a gradual step-by-step approach and general relaxation.

"Between these positions, which have been cemented with typical Teutonic thoroughness", a Western diplomat observed, "there is room for political manoeuvring and for practical agreements."

Observers here in Bonn believe that both sides could and should jointly state that:

(1) No war shall ever be started from German territory.

(2) The borders and territories of each other should be guaranteed; each side should vow to respect the social and political system of the other.

(3) Both German states will work towards European security and disarmament.

(4) Both states respect the existing European borders and confirm the principles of non-aggression and non-interference.

★ ★ ★

This would be a minimum of agreement. But it is believed here by most observers that if such a proposal came from Bonn, East Berlin could not afford to reject it. It would force the Communist hard-liners to get off their categorical demand for "everything or nothing."

Bonn would have to realize, though, that East Berlin would certainly take advantage of such a mutual statement with the argument that it was a step further toward formal diplomatic recognition.

A solemn statement, signed by East Berlin and Bonn, could one day become the backbone of contractual agreements between the two states — a solution which would give the Communists quasi-recognition and leave Bonn the excuse that it is not a formal recognition by international standards.

It would give Brandt and Stoph the chance of presenting concrete proof to the world that two states with different political and social orders are ready after a quarter of a century of enmity to come to terms and work towards maintaining peace in Europe and the world.

I Beg to Differ . . .

Spending-Money

By FRANK LOWE from Montreal

IF, AS so many economic pessimists are predicting, we do have a 1970 version of the dirty 1930s, the chief sufferers are going to be young boys.

And do you know why? Because in 1970 there is no market for returnable bottles. At least, none that I know of.

Today most things drinkable come in tins, or something known as "non-returnable" bottles.

And no kid can make any spending money gathering that kind of junk.

In the dirty 1930s things were much cheerier, if looked at from the viewpoint of a small boy. All things liquid came in real bottles, and these bottles, when emptied, could be turned into cash.

★ ★ ★

Milk bottles, of course, were sacrosanct. After all, these had to be exchanged every day — an empty one left on the doorstep to show the milkman you needed a replacement.

Only under extreme pressure — such as the horrible thought of missing a Tom Mix picture Saturday afternoon — would a boy take a chance on raiding his mother's supply of empty milk bottles.

Even then, the joy of the movie had to be equated beforehand with the pain which would follow the discovery of this felony.

But all other bottles were fair game. Especially those large, lovely quart beer bottles.

Each such bottle was worth two or three cents when handed over to the local junk dealer. Five such bottles meant one could go to the Saturday afternoon matinee and also have a bag of candy.

Which was really living, back in those days.

Mind you, getting enough of these bottles was not always easy. Not only was money scarce in those days, so many people had stopped drinking beer out of necessity, but we had the additional hazard of living in a community dedicated — at least on the surface — to dry living.

So a few days before that important Saturday matinee we would start scouring around. There was a hobo jungle up under the railroad bridge which would occasionally yield a few such treasures.

The garbage cans back of the local pool hall was also a likely lode — but small boys took the chancie of being beaten by larger boys if they were caught there. So one had to be cautious, and fleet of foot.

This meant that we lived what might be called an uncertain financial life. Even seemingly sure-fire sources would occasionally dry up.

★ ★ ★

One man I knew, for instance, liked to drink beer. And under the pretext that I was helping him clean out his cellar he would allow me to smuggle home half-a-dozen bottles camouflaged in a bag.

(After all, it would never do for a sub-teen to be seen walking the street openly carrying beer bottles. His family would be informed immediately and retribution could be swift.)

But occasionally this kind man would get tired of listening to his wife's lectures about this unseemly conduct — the reprobate sometimes consumed as many as two bottles of beer during a single evening — and I would be bottleless.

Which was equivalent to going bankrupt as far as I was concerned.

★ ★ ★

However, it seems that we generally made out somehow. If beer bottles were not available, and one did not have the courage to pinch a couple of empty milk bottles, one could always gather great heaps of ordinary bottles, which would bring in something like one-quarter cent each.

It was hard work, but when you were snuggled down in the front row of the Strand Theatre watching Rin Tin Tin all this was forgotten in the sheer bliss of the moment.

As I said, if things do continue to get financially worse, today's kids will not have this road to ready, if not easy, money.

Once their fathers take away their credit cards, and the stores start cancelling charge accounts for children, they will be economically dead.

FBI: Where Age Reigns

Colonist Los Angeles Times Service

WASHINGTON — A significant change in the top command of the Federal Bureau of Investigation Friday lent weight to the belief that J. Edgar Hoover intends to remain as director indefinitely, although he is 75 years old.

Another straw in the wind is that Hoover, according to reliable sources, insists on approving personally every stick of furnishing ordered for the new FBI building, even though the structure will not be ready for occupancy for nearly five years.

The change in command involved Cartha Deloach, No. 3 man in the bureau, who has served as acting director whenever Hoover was away. After 28 years of service with the FBI, Deloach disclosed, he will retire on July 20 and become a vice-president of Pepsico Inc., soft drink manufacturers.

Since the No. 2 man in the department, associate director Clyde Tolson, is 70, Deloach, 49, has often been mentioned as a possible successor to Hoover.

The fact that he is departing suggests two things to persons close to the FBI. One is that he anticipates no vacancy at the top for an indefinite period. The other is that he had concluded that when the director's post does become vacant President Nixon will, as a matter of policy, go outside the bureau to find a successor to Hoover.

No less an authority than Attorney-General John Mitchell believes the choice of the next FBI director will be, because of the enormous power of the job, the most important presidential appointment of this century.

Winged Darning Needle

Boeing Previews SST

By MARVIN MILES
Colonist Los Angeles Times Service

SEATTLE — When Boeing officials learned Friday that the company had lost the B-1 bomber contract, they were showing off the mockup of a fantastic 237-foot darning needle with wings.

At least that's the immediate impression created by the slim, rakish lines of the company's supersonic transport (SST) designed for as important a role in U.S. commercial aviation as the B-1 will play in future military flight.

In fact, as far as speed is concerned, the SST's 1,800 miles per hour at altitude may be even faster than the B-1, although the bomber also will be supersonic at treetop level for penetration under radar defences.

From a side view, the SST seems incredibly long for the width of its slender cabin — and even the mockup appears to be streaking through the stratosphere at Mach 2.7 within Boeing's display area here.

Only two feet shorter than a football field in length, the 298-foot production version will, in fact, be 61 feet longer than Boeing's ponderous 747 Jumbo Jet and infinitely more graceful.

In supersonic configuration, the ship has a sloping, javelin nose, with a fuselage that sweeps through a long, sleek, dolphin-like curve into a vertical tail that soars 53 feet above ground level.

But for takeoff and landing, the "smooth lines will be broken by a 35-foot droop-snoot nose section that lowers 16 degrees for pilot visibility, giving the craft a pelican-like appearance.

Inside, the cabin appears slightly larger than standard jetliners today (other than the jumbo) and will accommodate 250 to 321 passengers in seats that will vary in arrangement from three-two and three-three with a single aisle to two-three-two with a double aisle.

★ ★ ★

Because of the great heights at which the SST will fly, windows will be tiny — only 6½ inches in diameter. "But," asked one official, "how much are you going to see from 65,000 feet anyway?"

Two prototype SST's currently are on order, with the first flight scheduled for Nov. 30, 1972. Entry into airline service is expected in 1978.

★ ★ ★

Among officials attending the Friday ceremony was U.S. Transportation Secretary John A. Volpe.

Volpe noted that the SST's foes have harried the project on a series of issues, particularly in the area of noise and pollution, but pointed out that most legislators who have been willing to listen to the answers have been sold on the program.

No Tax Hike, Balanced Budget

Bourassa Unveils Plan To Stabilize Quebec

WINNIPEG (UPI) — Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa, who left home vowing to fight for more of "the nation's wealth" for his province, had the wealth — $100,000,000 of federal money — Friday night, and said he'd use it to balance the provincial budget without a tax increase.

Bourassa, both premier and finance minister in his cabinet, spoke to a news conference after the day's sessions of the federal-provincial finance ministers' meeting.

The money, which Bourassa said would help him balance the upcoming Quebec budget without raising taxes, is to come from three areas, he said.

Bourassa said $50,000,000 would come in readjustment of equalization payments, $28,400,000 for vocational training, and $20,000,000 in payments under the Canada Assistance Act.

Earlier, Bourassa proposed the federal government establish a permanent "stabilization" fund on which Canada's needier provinces could draw during periods of economic stress.

Bourassa's 37-page brief also urged that taxation of natural resources "be returned to the provinces" and opposed federal Fiance Minister Edgar Benson's proposal in his white paper on tax reforms under which unrealized capital gains would be taxed every five years.

★ ★ ★

"On several points, the white paper appears to be perhaps a little too idealistic," Bourassa said. "It does not make sufficient allowances for economic realities."

The Quebec premier, elected only April 29, said his suggestion for a "stabilization fund" was not intended to be definitive, but rather the topic of a working paper which he urged be put before the standing finance committee of the federal and provincial governments.

Split in Cabinet

Marijuana Pot Boiling Over

By RICHARD JACKSON
Colonist Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Solicitor-General George McIlraith has been joined by Revenue Minister Jean-Pierre Cote in the battle, raging in cabinet, over marijuana.

McIlraith, who reports to cabinet for the RCMP, is dead set against any move to legalize the use of pot.

Cote, a usually soft-spoken member of the Quebec wing of the Trudeau cabinet has come out hard against narcotics, warning of their "dead-end danger" to young people and calling for tougher penalties for drug pushers.

Reports long have been current — and gone undenied — that pot and a soft approach to narcotics believed in the shaping, has split the cabinet.

Health Minister John Munro has told Toronto students that under certain circumstances, the government should look at the possibility of legalizing marijuana.

Until Cote showed his colors, only McIlraith and Munro had surfaced on the issue.

But there is good reason to believe the revenue minister and the solicitor-general are a long way from being a cabinet minority of two.

Cote came out against narcotics in a speech prepared for delivery to a temperance group at St. Constance, Quebec.

He discounted the pro-pot argument that cigarettes and liquor do as much damage — possibly even more, according to the soft-liners — than marijuana.

He called for a crackdown against pot pushers and praised both his customs and excise staff as well and McIlraith's RCMP for their efforts to stop or at least slow the traffic in narcotics.

Ottawa's 'Arrogance' Blistered

VANCOUVER (CP) — Opposition leader Robert Stanfield told a press conference here Friday that he is becoming "increasingly concerned by the government's arrogance — its lack of consideration for, and consultation with, the people of the country."

He said this tendency was putting a heavy strain on national unity and gave as an example two decisions detrimental to British Columbia, the white paper recommendations on taxation and the unpegging of the dollar without concern for its economic effects.

But Mafia-Link Charges Will Be Probed

Ontario Rejects Police Inquiry

TORONTO (CP) — Attorney-General Arthur Wishart Thursday rejected a request for a public investigation into relationships between senior officers of the Ontario Provincial Police and persons known to have criminal connections.

★ ★ ★

Dr. Morton Shulman (NDP-Toronto High Park) told the legislature's estimates committee at least three senior OPP officers had relationships with Clinton Duke, a wealthy Oakville, Ont., contractor, and that Duke had relationships with members of the Mafia.

Wishart, however, promised to investigate Duke's asociation with the OPP and report in about two weeks to the legal and municipal committee.

★ ★ ★

Wishart said Duke is "not unknown" to the police and his department but that his past criminal record in the United States is not a bar to his carrying on "certain activities" in Ontario.

Shulman said OPP Commissioner Eric Silk and Superintendent Al Wilson were at the Duke house the same day it was visited by Johnny Papalia, whom Shulman described as an enforcer for the Mafia in Canada.

Randall Dick, deputy attorney-general, told the committee Commissioner Silk had described the visit to him last fall in case it should be misconstrued. Dick said he was satisfied the visit, resulting from an invitation issued to Mr. and Mrs. Silk at a wedding, had been casual and innocent.

Shulman said later he accepted the deputy's word on this without question. He insisted, however, there should be an inquiry into Duke's relations with Wilson and Supt. Archie Rogers, who Shulman said had intervened was involved.
in a court case in which Duke

★ ★ ★

Shulman said he began investigating the background of Duke last November after Duke had been found guilty in family court of threatening his neighbor, Elizabeth Citron, with a handgun. He posted a bond to keep the peace and lost his licence to carry a handgun.

School Construction

Systems Plan Advanced By Trustees

An independent building authority to develop and operate a universal construction system for B.C. Schools has been recommended in a report by the B.C. School Trustees Association.

The study was urged by Education Minister Donald Brothers last year as a way of finding methods of reducing the spiralling cost of school construction, but some reaction has been skeptical.

Greater Victoria school trustee Peter Bunn, buildings and grounds committee chairman, said Friday a systems approach to school construction is unlikely to make an impact of the scope some envisage.

More than half of Greater Victoria's recent $10,000,000 worth of construction, Bunn said, has been small "tacking-up" jobs, not adaptable to systems building.

Saanich school board's building superintendent Bryan Shaw, who is also president of the B.C. Plant Officials Association, said Friday the report is "reasonable" and there is "nothing in it which I think is unrealistic."

The report's appendix quotes Shaw, as saying "the idea of applying a single system to all school construction in the province just doesn't fit the facts" but that a "series of systems which can be assembled in a variety of ways" would be "feasible."

★ ★ ★

The last $1,000,000 worth of school construction in Saanich district was accomplished using the systems approach, resulting in "a lot more value for the money," Shaw said.

Brothers was out of town and unavailable for comment on the study, delivered to his office Wednesday.

The report says a "systems" building approach would cut and control costs, stabilize demands on material and builders, make use of two and five year predictions, save money on planning, and guarantee "consistent quality of educational environment."

A systems approach means that instead of building and planning each school from top to bottom, component parts would readily mesh in a number of ways to meet a number of needs.

The report also recommends that while individual school boards should dictate their own needs, the provincial government should control the total volume of expenditures on building.

The building authority, says the report, should be operated by the school boards and the government, each placing representatives on the authority's board of directors.

While believing that all elementary and secondary schools should be included in the system, the study says boards should have the option of building to their own plans, but that grants from the government would be no greater than the equivalent cost of a systems building.

The present referendum requirement for capital construction should be abolished, says the report. And the building authority should look at Alberta and Washington state as markets for the B.C. school system, the report says.

Laundry Workers Serve Strike Notice

Nelsons Laundries in Victoria and Nanaimo were served with 72-hour strike notice Thursday and the 150 employees could legally strike anytime after Sunday.

A supervised strike vote among members of Local 580, Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Union resulted in 75 per cent of the voters favoring strike action.

Union representative Red Visser, said Friday a strike would affect Nelsons Laundries both in Victoria and Nanaimo.

He said the union was willing to meet with the company to reach a settlement.

New Asian Worries Send Markets Lower

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market took a rough beating that sent the Dow Jones industrial average skidding some 11.50 points to 695.03 at the close.

The tumble in prices occurred in the face of heavy profit-taking on hefty gains in a recent rally and of reports that North Korea had sunk a U.S. spy ship and hints that Red China might send volunteers into Cambodia.

One analyst said the selloff was natural following the previous gains.

The Friday session marked the first time in a week that the Dow had slipped below the 700 level.

Giant Among Losers

VANCOUVER — The market fell into another decline on lower volume.

Leading mines were lower with Giant Mascot off .35 at 3.15, Gibraltar off .25 at 4.45, Casino off .14 at 2.41, while Highmont reversed the trend and rose .25 to 3.35.

Seaway Rises

TORONTO (CP) — The market posted a sharp loss under pressure from a price slice on Wall Street.

Observers said long-overdue profit-taking from several rally sessions was responsible for the steep drop.

Largest losses were in banks, beverages, chemicals, communications, food processing, industrial mining, merchandising, steel and trust and loans.

Among declining issues, Bombardier was down 1⅝ to 12¾, Falconbridge 1⅛ to 134, Chemcell 1¼ to 5⅛ and Dominion Textiles 1⅛ to 8¾.

Rally Halted

MONTREAL (CP) — Sellers picked up where the buyers left off the day before, sending prices downward on a broad front in light trading.

Banking institutions led the decline, falling more than two points and abruptly ending a two-day rally in the market.

Among banks, Toronto Dominion was off ⅛ at 18⅝, Royal Bank ⅛ to 21 and Bank of Montreal ⅝ to 15⅛. Royal Trust rose ¼ to 26.

Some Exporters Have Edge

By HARRY YOUNG
Business Editor

Not all Canadian exporting companies are going to be adversely hit by the unpegging and upward valuation of the Canadian dollar.

One of those protected against currency fluctuation is Westcoast Transmission which holds a number of long-term contracts to sell natural gas in the United States at predetermined prices.

D. P. McDonald, chairman of Westcoast, says however that these contracts contain provisions which will cushion any upward valuation of the Canadian dollar.

He noted also that Westcoast had some hedging of its own in that much of its long-term debt is payable as to interest and capital in U.S. dollars.

GIANT MOVES INTO OIL

Camp Investments of Montreal will become controlling shareholders of Giant Mascot Mines Ltd. if a new proposal to put Giant into the oil exploration industry is approved by shareholders of the B.C. mining company.

Giant plans to purchase Eagle Ridge Petroleums a Camp, in return for $1,000,000 cash and 3,000,000 treasury shares of Giant Mascot to Camp.

As Camp recently bought another 1,000,000 Giant shares at $3 each the new proposal would give Camp 4,625,627 shares of Giant or more than 60 per cent of the 2,693,728 which would then be outstanding.

Giant owns a copper-nickel mine at Hope that has been shipping concentrates regularly to Japan since 1962.

To effect its merger with Eagle Ridge, Giant will ask shareholders to increase the authorized capital from 7,500,000 to 10,000,000 shares.

Eagle Ridge is one of the participants in the current oil and gas search in the Arctic through its 4.5 per cent holding in Panarctic Oils.

Panarctic is a consortium of oil and mining companies now exploring and drilling in the Canadian Arctic islands, a program in which the Canadian government has 45 per cent interest.

TRIAD CHANGES NAME

B.P. Oil and Gas, formerly known as Triad Oil Co. Ltd., made a net profit of $1,485,000 (7.6 cents a share) in the three months ended March 31, an increase from $804,000 (4.5 cents) in the corresponding period of 1969.

The company reports that its offer to purchase all the outstanding 4¾ per cent and 5½ per cent notes of Triad had been accepted in respect of $23,654,000 out of a total principal amount outstanding of $26,100,000. The funds were raised by the sale of common share rights that realized $25,360,000 earlier in the year.

CHEMCELL PAYS LESS

A cut in the dividend of Chemcell Ltd. was responsible for a fall in that company's stock to a new low of 5¼ on Toronto Stock Exchange Friday. It was down 1¼ on the day.

Chemcell announced its next quarterly dividend would be 3 cents, down from 7 cents.

□

CRUSH PROFITS DOUBLED

Crush International doubled its net profits in the first quarter of 1970, when earnings rose to $555,000 (13 cents a share) from $256,000 (6 cents) in the corresponding period of 1969.

Seaway Fight

Directors' Posts Rescued

TORONTO (CP) — Embattled directors of Seaway Multi-Corp. Ltd. retained office Friday in a close shareholders fight with members of the Levy family.

But the Levy family, formerly part of Seaway management, gained approval of a motion to name a chartered accountant to investigate the affairs of management since Dec. 31, 1968, and to report to shareholders.

★ ★ ★

The Levy family petitioned for the meeting to unseat present directors and elect its own slate.

The move to unseat President Norton Cooper and his directors failed by about 112,000 votes. The motion required a two-thirds majority. The vote was 1,127,563 for removal—about 61 per cent—and 731,571 against.

Other Levy motions to name their own nominees to the board of directors and to express lack of confidence in present directors were ruled out of order by Cooper. He said there were no vacancies in the board.

Mark, Benjamin and Edward Levy petitioned for the meeting earlier this year, saying that they and corporations they control owned or controlled 1,150,000 of Seaway's 1,826,000 issued common shares.

★ ★ ★

Seaway Multi-Corp. had been Seaway Hotels Ltd. until 1968. Cooper gained control and turned the hotel-motel chain into a conglomerate.

Seaway bought Levy Industries last year for $28,000,000 and for a time the Levys were employees of Seaway. They were dismissed early this year and Seaway is suing members of the family for fraud in connection with the purchase.

U.S. Jobless Reach 5 Per Cent

WASHINGTON (AP) — The unemployment rate in the United States climbed in May for the fifth straight month, rising to 5 per cent from 4.8 per cent of the labor force for the highest rate in more than five years, the government said Friday.

The labor department said the number of jobless rose 160,000 to a total of 4,100,000. Total employment, which usually rises substantially in May, dropped 475,000 to 78,400,000.

Tax Paper Deadline Closure, Tory Says

By RICHARD JACKSON
Colonist Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — A beefed-up Liberal majority on the Commons trade and economic affairs committee has set a deadline for the hearing of briefs on the government's hotly controversial white paper on taxation.

★ ★ ★

After July 31, no more witnesses can be heard, regardless of how many people are waiting in line to make what so far have been almost entirely hostile representations.

★ ★ ★

Conservative finance critic, West Edmonton MP Marcel Lambert charges that imposition of the deadline is "Closure" and a "further crippling of the parliamentary process," making "even more of a joke of Prime Minister Trudeau's solemn declaration that there will be full public dialogue on such issues."

★ ★ ★

Committee chairman, Toronto Liberal MP Alastair Gillespie, counters that the laying down of a deadline is "only the sensible and orderly thing to do — the hearings have to end some time."

★ ★ ★

Lambert who has led the Conservatives in the committee hearings, charges that it has been "an examination of exhaustion."

★ ★ ★

Witnesses sometimes have been kept sitting around all day long to give their evidence, he protests.

He quotes Agriculture Minister Bud Olson as saying recently in Medicine Hat that "it was time to bring the public debate on the white paper to an end."

Don Lumb, six-foot-three and 255 pounds, was Calgary's second-round choice in the 1970 Canadian College draft. A native of Coquitlam, he played high school football in Vancouver, one season at Simon Fraser University and the last three years at the University of British Columbia. ## Van Burkleo Files Suit

OTTAWA (CP) — Bill Van Burkleo, defensive halfback and back-up quarterback with Ottawa Rough Riders last season, has filed a suit to recover $10,000 said to have been loaned to Red O'Quinn, former Ottawa general manager, and Rick Black, a retired Ottawa player.

The statement of claim says Van Burkleo advanced the money last November in connection with Sports Canada, a magazine in which O'Quinn and Black have interests. It suspended publication this year because of financial difficulties.

O'Quinn now is manager of Montreal Alouettes of the Canadian Football League.

Hockey Talks Produce 'Sort of Union'

JIM TANG
Colonist Sports Editor

KAMLOOPS — It looks now as if the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association has lost almost all of Western Canada junior hockey.

The latest development in the ever-changing picture — which could change again within a day, a week or a month — is a sort of a union between the Western Canada Hockey League and the British Columbia Junior Hockey League which will probably keep both leagues outside the CAHA.

As far as could be ascertained Friday night after a day-long series of meetings conducted in an air of intrigue is that the BCJHL will use over-age players (by CAHA definition) next season and that at least five of its clubs will have working arrangements with WCHL clubs.

Presumably, the WCHL, which broke away from CAHA when the agreement with the National Hockey League reduced the junior age limit to 19 years, will continue to use players up to 21 years of age. But it's also possible that they may restrict over-age players to four per team.

However, the agreement has brought a change in BCJHL planning. The league decided at a meeting earlier this year to set its age limit at 20 years and permit unlimited imports. Under the proposed arrangement with the WCHL, Vancouver Centennials and Victoria Cougars will be permitted four 20-year-old players and the clubs, which will be affiliated with WCHL clubs, will be allowed two.

That, in itself, will not be giving any edge to the coast clubs because Chilliwack Jets, Kamloops Rockets, Kelowna Buckaroos, Penticton Broncos and Vernon Essos will have a built-in player source.

Position Strengthened

The significant feature of the development is that it appears to make it obvious that the WCHL, its position strengthened by this liaison with the BCJHL, has decided not to return to the CAHA.

WCHL officials would neither confirm or deny this but the playing of 20-year-olds should put the BCJHL outside the CAHA. It follows that the league would not be allowed to deal with an "outlaw" league if it was part of the CAHA.

Friday's developments, not yet official and subject to quick change as they are, still appear to have ended most of the speculation and at least some of the apprehension which has existed for some time in BCJHL.

The league, determined to improve itself, made its big move with the decision to raise the age limit and use unlimited imports. It was, in a way, an answer to the WCHL which had been trying to woo the coast clubs as members and had plans to use the remainder of the BCJHL as a farm league.

It almost certainly also meant a break with the CAHA and there was understandably an underlying fear about making it stick plus the worry about being able to hold off the intentions of the WCHL with its more experienced operators.

All-Out Peace Effort

There was more uncertainty when the CAHA, at its recently concluded meeting, made an all-out effort to make peace with the WCHL.

The CAHA offer included putting the WCHL into the upper of the two-tiers planned for junior hockey, the payment of $100,000 and the right to phase out its age limit by permitting the use of four 20-year-olds this season and two in the 1971-72 season.

Acceptance by the WCHL would have left the BCJHL with the choice of carrying out its announced plans and becoming the lone "outlaw" league or returning to the CAHA and becoming a Tier-Two league.

The WCHL wasn't saying, and still hasn't made it official, what it intended to do. But it wasn't long before rumors came back that it still had its eyes on the B.C. league, both as a source of talent and a developer of talent. A decision on the CAHA offer, it was believed, might hinge on what it could do with the BCJHL.

Among the reports sifting back to Victoria was that five WCHL clubs would have representatives at Kamloops for the annual BCJHL meeting and that they would be trying to effect affiliation with the five "interior" B.C. clubs.

On Hand in Numbers

This could have been construed as a power-play, using the divide-and-conquer theory leaving the coast clubs with a choice of accepting inclusion in the WCHL or remaining in the league which would in effect be no more than a farm league for the WCHL.

It was enough to bring Victoria president Bill Ferguson here a day before the league meeting.

He didn't want to arrive Friday evening and find arrangements which might split the league already completed.

There certainly was substance to the report. Here on our arrival were WCHL-president Ron Butlin; owner-manager Bill Hunter of Edmonton Oil Kings; owner-manager Scotty Munro of Calgary Centennials; owner-manager Ernie McLean of Estevan Bruins and Jack Shupe, manager-coach of Medicine Hat Tigers.

Owner Jim Piggott of Saskatoon Blades and manager-coach Jackie McLeod, who had turned down a job with Victoria Cougars, arrived Friday morning.

The clubs had a BCJHL club in mind as a farm team and the first offer from the WCHL would have made BCJHL something even less than a Tier-Two league.

It called for the five B.C. clubs eyed as affiliates to reduce their age limit to 18 and use the maximum of four 19-year-olds. Each of the BCJHL clubs would receive playing talent and other unspecified benefits but the "parent" WCHL clubs would be permitted unlimited transfers up to Dec. 31.

But Things Could Change

There was little chance this offer would be accepted and further negotiations brought the plan outlined above.

It appears to have won favor and will be brought up at today's league meeting. The probability is that a committee will be struck to draft an agreement and that final ratification will come later this month.

At the moment it seems that Estevan will work with Penticton, Calgary with Kamloops, Saskatoon with Kelowna and Medicine Hat with Vernon.

It must be pointed out again, however, that things could change even before the end of today's league meeting. Although it may remain relatively unchanged for as long as a season, the situation is almost certainly temporary. Sooner or later the BCJHL will have to decide it can be strong enough to stand on its own or lose the coast clubs and become an acknowledged farm league.

The best bet is that the latter is what will happen, Victoria and Vancouver eventually obtaining WCHL franchises.

Dragways Grudges

Frank Jones of Victoria and Dave Johnson of Courtenay will be out to break a first-place deadlock in the individual point standings at Van Isle Dragways Sunday.

Also featured Sunday will be super-stock racing.

Sid Chow, Ken Armstrong, Rob Harlan and Doug Temple ran their relay heat in 43.1 seconds to break the Canadian interscholastic mark of 43.3 seconds set last year at the B.C. finals by Armstrong, Harlan, Darryl Hooker and Bruce Fryer.

Cindy Druce, a pupil at Cedar Hill Elementary, qualified for the B.C. high school meet next weekend at Centennial Stadium when she finished second to Gail Turney of Cowichan in the girls' 100-metre final.

Miss Druce ran both her heat and the final in 12.4 seconds, a tenth of a second off the Canadian age-class mark set last year by Richmond's Leslie Hough.

EIGHT RECORDS FALL

In all, eight records were broken and two tied in the 16 events, 11 of which were finals.

More records are expected to fall today when the meet resumes at 12 noon with athletes finishing first or second qualifying for the B.C. meet.

Miss Turney set one of the records with her 12.0-second run, two-tenths of a second faster than the time of Mt. Douglas' Anne Langdale last year.

The other girls' marks were both established by members of defending-champion Mt. Douglas. Linda May broke teammate Lindsay Jack's javelin record by more than 24 feet with a throw of 127 feet, nine inches and Miss Jack raised her own high-jump mark a quarter inch to five feet, one-half inches.

SPECTACULAR HEAVE

Murray Keating of Mt. Douglas smashed the hammer throw set by Esquimalt's Jim Armstrong in 1968 of 119 feet, two inches in spectacular style with a heave of 176 feet, one and a-half inches.

Doug Temple of Mt. Douglas added nine inches to last-year's mark of Shawnigan Lake's Bruce Ruddell with an effort of 43 feet, nine inches.

Dan Ryan of Oak Bay, who also qualified for the 800-metres final, won the 400 metres in 49.9 seconds, half a second faster than the record set last year by Bruce Fryer of Mt. Douglas.

Tim Murphy of Claremont took almost nine seconds off the 1969 mark of Nanaimo's Ed Shook in the 1500-metre steeplechase with a time of four minutes, 34.8 seconds.

Ray Park of Alberni twice tied the record for the 100 metres set in 1965 by Terry Ryan, Dan's older brother, as he won both his heat and the final in 10.9 seconds.

Jill Pelland of Oak Bay tied the 1969 record of Mt. Douglas' Penny May in the 80-metre hurdle heats with a run of 11.7 seconds and has another crack at the mark today.

Victoria-area teams dominated the first day of the meet with Mt. Douglas gaining 73½ points to take the lead, 38 ahead of runner-up Oak Bay. Claremont is third at 34 points followed by Victoria, 25, Esquimalt, 21, and Alberni Valley, 17.

It was a rather unhappy day for meet-director Garry Montgomery of Claremont, who had two of his athletes miss their events. Reg Underwood, who set the triple-jump record in the recent Victoria meet, was two minutes late for his event and George Ritchie, who thought the 100-metre final was today, missed that event and as a result caused the school's 400-metre relay squad to be disqualified.

Laboy's Homer Ends Expos' Losing Streak

Montreal Expos and San Diego Padres, cellar-dwellers in their National League divisions, flexed their muscles Friday . . . but so did Chicago Cubs and Cincinnati Reds, leaders of the Eastern and Western Divisions respectively.

Coco Laboy led off the ninth inning with his second home run of the season to give the Expos a 3-2 decision over Atlanta Braves, ending an 11-game Montreal losing streak.

Laboy's clout came off ace reliever Hoyt Wilhelm and resulted in Braves third loss in 17 home games.

BREAKS UP DUEL

Clarence Gaston drove in two runs with a double and single to lead San Diego to a 3-2 win over St. Louis Cardinals.

His single to right field in the seventh inning with Jose Arcia on second base broke up a tight mound duel between Pat Dobson and Mike Torrez.

The Cubs bombed Juan Marichal and three successors for 16 hits and were helped by four Giant errors in a 12-8 romp over San Francisco.

Tony Perez drilled a three-run homer in the third inning — his league leading 20th — but Cincinnati needed a sharp single by Lee May in the sixth to nip New York Mets, 5-4. The game was halted in the eighth inning by rain.

Bob Moose of Pittsburgh blanked Los Angeles Dodgers, 3-0, on six hits and Denis Menke gave Houston an 8-7 win over Philadelphia with a one-out, run scoring single in the 11th inning in other National League games.

A 19-year-old right-hander, Bert Blyleven, who was pitching high school baseball a year ago, won his major league debut by pitching Minnesota Twins to a 2-1 win over Washington Senators. Blyleven, a native of Holland, struck out seven, walked one and allowed only a first-inning run in seven innings.

Graham Nabs Kemper Lead Nicklaus Fails to Qualify

Al Arbour

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Lou Graham assumed the second round lead in the $150,000 Kemper Open golf tournament Friday with a solid 68, Arnold Palmer moved into contention and Jack Nicklaus missed the cut for the final two rounds.

Graham, a 32-year-old tour regular, had a 36-hole total of 135, nine under par on the 7,231-yard Quail Hollow Country Club course and owned a one-stroke lead over 46-year-old Art Wall.

Wall, a graying former Masters champion, had a second 68 for 136.

Palmer, the all-time leading money winner and easily the most popular figure on the tour, delighted his vast gallery with a second 69 for 138, just three strokes out.

The powerful Nicklaus, bothered by putting woes, strugged in with a 74 for 147 and failed to qualify for the final two rounds today and Sunday.

It was the first time in more than a year that Nicklaus had missed a cut, but he was far from the most disappointed man in the field.

That distinction belonged to Schroeder, the 24-year-old son of former tennis star Ted Schroeder. Schroeder had a 69 for 138 and forgot to sign his card.

"I guess I'm out," the disbelieving young man said when he looked at his card, his head down and his lips clenched.

Lionel Hebert, the 42-year-old trumpet player who won the 1957 PGA National championship, slipped to a 71 for 137 and was alone in third place. Hebert had shared the first round lead with Gibby Gilbert, who went to a 74 for 140.

Also at 140, with a 69 Friday, was Al Balding of Toronto. George Knudson stayed in with a 71 for 145, but a third Toronto golfer, Gary Bowerman, was out of it with a 77 for a 151 total.

Palmer was tied at 138 with Grier Jones, 69, Larry Hinson, who matched the course record with a sparkling 65, and Dick Lotz, who had a 68.

Arbour Selected To Coach Blues

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Defenseman Al Arbour, 15-season veteran of the National Hockey League, embarked Friday on a new career as coach of St. Louis Blues.

Arbour, 37, captain of the Blues since he was selected in the 1967 expansion draft, replaces Scotty Bowman who remains as general manager.

Bowman, 36, has coached the Blues since November, 1967, and directed them three years in a row into the Stanley Cup finals, serving the final season in the dual role as coach-general manager.

He had a 97-72-40 record, winningest among West Division clubs, and guided the Blues to a 24-22 mark in the playoffs.

"I think I made the decision to give up coaching toward the end of the past season, when I could see that other general managers were going out and watching amateur talent," Bowman said. "I felt that the two jobs had become just too much."

"I think Al will have the respect of his players because of the way he has played. I don't think there will be a player who will want to give his less than 110 per cent."

"I think I've always wanted to coach, but I didn't think I ever anticipated I'd start at the NHL level," said Arbour.

Personality Scratched From Today's Belmont

NEW YORK (AP) — Personality, heavily-favored to add the Belmont Stakes to his Preakness victory, was scratched late Friday afternoon from this third leg of the triple crown because of a cough that began earlier in the week.

Trainer John Jacobs, making the announcement in the press box at Belmont park, said he felt "that in the horse's present condition he could not do his best. In fairness to the fans and racing, I want to make the announcement now."

Jacobs said Personality had nasal discharge Wednesday, slight fever Thursday and a cough with another nasal discharge.

Jacobs explained that because of racing's anti-medication rules, with the closeness of the race he couldn't give Personality any medication for the cough.

"As a trainer, my first obligation is to the horse," Jacobs said. "It is a minor condition but just too close to the race."

The departure of Mrs. Ethel D. Jacobs's Personality, a 6-to-5 favorite as an entry with High Echelon, reduced the field to 10 three-year-olds for the 1½-mile test and made it a wide-open affair.

MY DAD GEORGE FAVORED

My Dad George, who was the second choice at 5-2, became favorite at 2-1, followed by High Echelon at 3-1.

Eddie Belmonte, who rode Personality to his victories in the Preakness and in last week's Jersey Derby, was to have been aboard the colt here. He apparently will switch now to Naskra, for whom he also was nominated in case Personality was scratched.

Personality was to have started from the outside position with High Echelon in the fifth post. Raymond M. Curtis's My Dad George, runner-up in the Kentucky Derby won by Dust Commander, will leave from the third slot under Ray Broussard. Dust Commander is not entered.

Bonallack, Hyndman In Rematch

NEWCASTLE, Northern Ireland (AP) — Bill Hyndman of Philadelphia continued his cliffhanging play Friday with a final-hole, 2-up victory in the British Amateur Golf Championship to gain a rematch in the final against defending champion Michael Bonallack of England.

After earlier victories on the 19th, 20th and 21st holes and then a 3-and-2 win over Scottish Walker Cupper Charlie Green in Friday's quarter-finals, Hyndman, 54, birdied the final hole to beat Ireland's Brian Hoey in the semi-finals.

Bonallack, who beat the American insurance broker 3 and 2 in last year's title round, reached the final with a 6-and-5 rout over Ron Napier of South Africa and a 2-and-1 victory over Bruce Critchley of Britain.

The 36-hole final will be played today.

Ex-Cardinal Dies at 74

WENDELL, N.C. (AP) — Frank S. 'Jake' May, a pitcher in the National League for 14 years, has died here at the age 74. After playing with St. Louis Cardinals and Cincinnati Reds, he was traded to Chicago Cubs in 1931 and pitched in the 1932 World Series gainst New York Yankees. A left-hander, he fanned Babe Ruth twice as the Yankees took the series 4-0. Then May retired at age 37.

Unbeaten Vicettes and Cordova Bay Juniors, headed for their first meeting of the season Tuesday at Lochside Park, posted their fifth wins of the season Thursday in the Victoria Senior Women's Softball League.

Vicettes trimmed Sidney Sweet Hearts, 22-0, at Sidney Park and Cordova Bay beat Tudor House, 17-8, at Lochside Park.

In the other game, Westendale Construction trounced Tillicum Athletic Club, 21-9, at Central Park.

Russia plays Belgium, Uruguay meets Italy, Romania and Czechoslovakia clash and Peru takes on Morocco.

Highlight of the four-game Sunday schedule will be the game between England and Brazil, considered by many as a preview of the final. In other games, Mexico plays El Salvador, Israel meets Sweden and Bulgaria takes on West Germany.

Carol Leading

BALTIMORE (CP-AP) — Carol Mann shot a five-under-par 68 Friday for a one-stroke lead over Sandra Palmer after the first round of the $22,500 Lady Carling open golf tournament here.

Sandra (Post) Elliott, former Canadian open champion who won the Ladies' Professional Golf Association championship as a rookie in 1968, led the foreign players with a two-under-par 71.

Sunday Will Be Different—Pele

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Pele, Brazil's top soccer star, says Sunday's match with England "has to be different than the one against Czechoslovakia."

In a press conference Friday, Pele indicated the style of the English team "is more solid, more defensive and they will surely make a game in accordance to the opponent."

Pele said England lacks players as skilful as Brazil's and "for them it would be difficult to play against us with more skill."

□

Juan Eduardo Hohberg, technical director of Uruguay's national soccer team, says he expects to win today's game against Italy even without his top star, Pedro Rocha, out with an injury.

He said he will have to take steps to neutralize the penetrating offensive of the Italians.

"Italy dominates in the midfield and there is only one dangerous player — Luigi Riva."

□

Armando Blanco, ticket director of the World Cup organizing committee, said all tickets for the June 21 final game for the Jules Rimet Trophy have been sold.

□

Sir Stanley Rous, FIFA president, denied Friday any knowledge of a special World Cup match to aid victims of the Peruvian earthquake.

Local papers had reported that Guillermo Canedo, president of the Mexican Football Association and a FIFA executive committee member, had suggested the idea to Sir Stanley.

Canedo's plan was to have a match after the World Cup final on June 21 pitting the best European players and South America's best, they said. All money would go to the Peruvian sufferers.

Rene Court, FIFA press officer, said:

"Mr. Canedo has not approached us. If and when he does there will have to be considerable discussion as such a match would take a lot of organizing."

Unionists Balk

ment, all workers are being attacked."

A United Steelworkers of America delegate who identified himself as Angus Macdonald said he was not entirely in agreement with the caucus statement, but added, "It is a hell of a lot better than the stuff that has been coming out of the caucus for the past six months.

"It lets us know their true feelings at last and I'm pleased that at least they recognize we do belong to the NDP and are working partners."

Tom Berger, who won the party leadership in April, 1969, with strong support from labor union delegates, told the convention he supported the caucus statement although he was not among the signatories.

★ ★ ★

"What this document is saying is that members of this party, including delegates from trade unions, decide what our policies shall be.

"If you ask whether we stand on the side of J. V. Clyne or on the side of the trade union movement it says we stand with the trade unions. And for anyone to suggest that it is a slander on trade unions means that they cannot have read it.

"The document says the caucus cannot be the instrument of any group but it makes clear that we are working together for common goals. When we think they are wrong we reserve the right to tell them so."

★ ★ ★

Robert Strachan, who was Berger's predecessor as party leader and is a long-time foe of union attempts to exert control over the party, said the document signed by the caucus clarifies members' position and that of the party in an area where there has been confusion in the past.

"Nothing in this statement denigrates the trade union movement. It simply reaffirms and restates the fact that the members of the party determine our policy," he said.

Strachan said every member of the caucus is prepared to stand shoulder to shoulder with the workers in or out of the trade union movement when government and business in the province declare war on them.

★ ★ ★

"It is obvious there is collusion on the part of the employer to beat down the workers of this province once and for all. We in the NDP must support them (the workers) because it is only in that way that the workers can stand up against the kind of blitzkrieg that is being carried on against them today."

The 10-part statement signed by all the NDP MLAs said they are a group that hopes to govern this province for the benefit of all the people and added "our view must reflect the broader public interest rather than the view of one single sector of society. Significant as the organized labor segment is, the public interest must prevail."

★ ★ ★

It said when government has moved in a restrictive way against a free labor movement, the opposition by the caucus aginst such intrusion has been clear and unequivocal whether politically popular or not.

Barrett added: "And that includes the stand of our party in this time of very great trouble."

"Let me say the government in B.C. is not in a position to be fair because the government of B.C. is owned and controlled by big business."

The statement said the caucus wants to have no part of internal and inter-union disputes because these are essentially labor's problems, but it added, the elected members of the party must be free to criticize the labor movement where it feels such action is justified and necessary.

It said the caucus and organized labor should try to solve their difficulties in private but public discussion of genuine differences could strengthen both.

It concluded: "In today's society in B.C., we are two important forces working together for a better society. Most of the time we walk together on a parallel course. At times we disagree on the direction. If those differences are too great, then our course must be set by the membership alone."

Man Sentenced to Freedom

The officers of Victoria Provincial Court went about it the wrong way Friday but still accomplished their purpose — ending the confinement of a man who had been in jail 27 days.

The man was Stuart Arthur Munn, 20, of Campbell River, who first appeared May 11 to hear a two-count charge of possession of narcotics May 9 in Victoria. Plea was reserved so Munn could apply for legal aid, bail was set at $500 and the case remanded to May 19.

No defence counsel had been appointed by that date, so a further remand was granted to May 26, when Robert Doell appeared for Munn with Ten Pollard as prosecutor. Munn pleaded guilty to both counts.

Court was told three ounces of marijuana and one ounce of hashish were found in a bus depot locker after police discovered a key when Munn was checked in Beacon Hill Park. Munn was remanded to Friday for a pre-sentence report and sentence.

Friday, Doell asked for leniency, noting the report was favorable and that Munn had been in custody for 27 days while awaiting legal aid, hearing and sentence.

Judge William Ostler said a higher-court ruling meant that, in cases where retroactive jail terms might be appropriate, he could only sentence from the date of conviction and not the date of arrest. He asked the conviction date and was told May 19, when it was actually on May 26 that Munn pleaded guilty.

The judge sentenced Munn to 15 days in jail, effective on the date of conviction, on the one count and to a $400 fine on the other, giving him three months to pay the fine.

Court officials released Munn, since 15 days was within the span of time between the incorrectly-announced conviction date of May 19 and Friday.

Later Friday, the judge was informed of the error and the fact the sentence meant Munn should stay in jail until the middle of next week. He replied that the prosecution and defence had agreed on the procedure in court and Munn had been freed anyway — so nothing would be done.

Surrender Was Simple For Frightened Sister

A juvenile girl picked the right place Friday when she decided to give herself up after running away from a shoplifting arrest.

Victoria police said that security men at The Bay were trying to arrest two juvenile sisters on a shoplifting charge. They apprehended the younger girl, but the older one ran away down Douglas.

Police said the girl ran into the Imperial Inn at 1961 Douglas. Several people talked to her and she may also have phoned her mother before, finally, she told a man that she and her sister had been shoplifting and she was scared but wanted to give herself up.

The man told her that was easy — just go over to another man in the lobby. The second man was one of several delegates registering for a three-day convention of the executive of the B.C. Federation of Police Officers, which began Friday at the Imperial.

The sisters are to appear in juvenile court today.

Alternate-Route Plan Scuttled

An alternate route for B.C. Hydro transmission lines to avoid five homes on Munn Road has been rejected by B.C. Hydro chairman Gordon Shrum.

In a letter to Munn Road spokesman Pat Codyre, Shrum gave reasons for turning down a solution which Codyre said would save B.C. Hydro $200,000 and preserve the homes.

He had suggested the lines behind the homes.

Principal reason for rejecting the suggestion was engineering advice that the alternate route would mean crossing over or under existing high-tension powerlines, Codyre said.

★ ★ ★

Such a crossing would be both expensive and hazardous, according to Shrum.

Shrum also said five different homes lay in the path of Codyre's proposed route.

Codyre said he had not been surprised by the rejection, but he disagreed with what he called the "excuses."

Codyre said the line proposed by B.C. Hydro would have to cross an existing line coming in from Finlayson Arm.

He said there is an east-west line and a north-south line at the Pike Lake substation which will have to be crossed to get a line up the Saanich Peninsula.

★ ★ ★

"Who do they think they are trying to kid when they say they can't do this because it's dangerous and hazardous, when they are already planning it in the existing route," he said.

"These are just silly, idiotic excuses."

COSY Picks Sad Bird

Reds Capture, Lose Set Bo

SAIGON (AP) — Communist command troops overran Set Bo and then lost it to a Cambodian counter-attack in a battle only 10 miles southeast of Phnom Penh, officers in the field reported. It was the closest major fighting to the Cambodian capital so far.

Judge's 'Justice' Halts Trial

Judge Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre, acting "in the interests of justice," changed a trial into a preliminary hearing Friday in Victoria Provincial Court.

Robert Noel Parker, 22, of 493 Ker in Saanich, was being tried on a charge of assaulting a peace officer April 18 in Victoria, the charge naming the officer as Victoria police Insp. Brooke Douglass.

After prosecutor Cory Stolte closed his case, defence lawyer Cal Becker applied for the change, noting that the judge had recently committed Parker for trial in a higher court on a charge of possession of an offensive weapon.

The judge said he felt he was "acting in the interests of justice" to approve the application, since he had heard both cases. He committed Parker for trial in a higher court on the charge of assaulting a peace officer.

Becker asked that bail be continued at $500, noting that Parker was on $1,500 bail pending trial in Victoria County Court next December on the weapon charge. Stolte asked for an increase and the judge finally set $1,200 as bail in the assault case.

□

In the same court, Michael Coutinho, 20, of Chilliwack, was found guilty following a trial last month on a charge of trafficking in LSD last Nov. 20 in Victoria and was sentenced to five months in jail.

The term will run at the same time as a sentence of five months definite and nine months indeterminate that Coutinho received May 20 from Judge William Ostler. It followed Coutinho's convictions on one charge of trafficking in hashish and one charge of possession of hashish.

□

Most surprised man in Ostler's court was Kenneth Charles Moran, 21, whose address was given as 1100 Emerson or 1429 Vining.

He appeared for a routine remand before his preliminary hearing June 18 on one charge of breaking and entering and theft and one charge of possession of stolen goods worth more than $50.

But prosecutor John MacIntyre asked that the hearing be held at once since "I plan to call no evidence." The judge explained to Moran that this meant "there is no case against you. Therefore, you are discharged. You may go home."

□

Changing an earlier plea of not guilty, James Cameron Sprague, 27, of 1842 Monteith, pleaded guilty to a three-count charge laid May 18 by Saanich police — impaired driving, driving without insurance and driving while his licence was suspended.

Sprague admitted a 1970 conviction in Victoria for impaired driving and driving while his licence was suspended, and also admitted having a criminal record. The case was remanded to June 15 so the prosecution can seek to prove two alleged impaired driving convictions in 1964 and so Sprague can appear next Friday in Campbell River on a charge of driving while disqualified.

□

Danny Victori Headdy, 22, of 1277 Oscar, was found not guilty by Ostler following a trial that occupied three days in May on a charge of possession of hashish April 3 in Victoria. The judge said the case was "extraordinarily suspicious" but he could not say "beyond a reasonable doubt" that Headdy was guilty.

□

A suspended sentence and one-year probationary term were given to George M. Smilowski, 22, of 207 Burnside, after he pleaded guilty May 19 to a charge of possession of marijuana in Victoria earlier in May.

□

Anne Marie Denis, 24, of 1013 Esquimalt, was fined $400 after she pleaded guilty May 26 to a charge of possession of marijuana the day before in her residence.

RCMP Seeks Public's Help

Did Anyone See Girl in Car?

Did anyone see a 12-year-old girl who is small for her age getting into a light-colored compact car in the 1100 block Government last Tuesday afternoon sometime after 4 p.m.?

★ ★ ★

Did anyone see a girl answering that description in that kind of a car while it was travelling from Victoria to the Sooke-Jordan River district or travelling around the Sooke-Jordan River area last Tuesday between the late afternoon hours and darkness?

Anyone who did was asked Friday by the RCMP to get in touch with the RCMP Sooke detachment at 642-5414 or the force's headquarters in Victoria at 388-3371 as soon as possible.

★ ★ ★

RCMP made the request for help from the public in connection with the case of a 12-year-old Victoria girl who was found Wednesday afternoon on a rocky creekbed about 60 feet below Jacobs Creek Bridge near Point No Point.

The girl remained in fair condition Friday in St. Joseph's Hospital with fractures and other injuries which police said are expected to keep her in traction for at least three months.

Police had disclosed Thursday that the girl, who was reported missing Tuesday night after being last seen at about 4 p.m., apparently was injured when she was dropped from the bridge and may have lain on the creekbed for about 16 hours until her cries were heard by a hitchhiker forced to walk because she couldn't get a ride.

★ ★ ★

The appeal for help described the car into which a girl entered Tuesday afternoon as a compact sedan, not a new model and of a light tan color.

Officials who made the appeal also disclosed that two RCMP dogs were brought Friday from Nanaimo and the B.C mainland to search the Sooke area for evidence. Other sources indicated that police using the dogs were looking for a specific location.

High-Class Hijinks

Friday's mystery was evident at daybreak at legislative buildings when early light showed Esquimalt high school grads had visited stately grounds during hours of darkness and left their calling card. Question still unanswered is how students reached balcony to string sign of graduating class of 1970. —(Jeffrey Pinniger)

Alcoholics' Road Back Blocked?

Rest Home May Close

By JOHN MATTERS

Three hours after the Belmont Heights Rest Home opened to care for alcoholics, Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread drove up with the first patient.

And out on the driveway to meet them May 18 — that was 20 days — was Tom Ferguson, former alcoholic and now administrator of a centre that he hoped would make life just a little easier for persons burdened with that disease.

Dr. Whitbread, Greater Victoria's senior medical health officer, undoubtedly was thinking that here, at last, was a place that would accept an alcoholic, in all his filth and sickness, and help him crawl back to life.

Money Woes

But suddenly this week, the financial foundations of Ferguson's enterprise started trembling and he said Friday the place might close in seven days if he doesn't find more money.

That means three or four of the 18 men and women will be taken to the emergency department of Royal Jubilee Hospital and the remainder — well, who knows? By some miracle some may not make their way back to Skid Road.

Belmont Heights at 1023 Belmont in Victoria is unique as far as care of alcoholics goes. It can give the man or woman who is shaking, vomiting and depressed some forms of medical treatment.

The three halfway houses, Alcoholics Anonymous and the Alcoholism Foundation generally offer counselling and other such therapeutic services.

But Belmont Heights now is caring for two men who fell down the stairs and fractured their skulls. Another has gastrointestinal problems related to alcoholism.

LSD, Booze

Then there's a 41-year-old man who mixed LSD and booze and was found walking a downtown street, crying. There's a nurse who slipped into alcoholism after her marriage collapsed.

"If I have to push them out, where will they go?" said Ferguson. "The chances are great that they will go back to the bottle — the bottles of vanilla extract they drink in those little downtown rooms that rent for $20 or $30 a month."

" 'Don't do that again,' we tell them, but that's just preaching, pushing stuff down their throats. It's like forcing them to say prayers and sing hymns."

There is none of that at Belmont Heights, explains Ferguson, because it seldom works. Instead, patients are encouraged to enjoy the environment, the treed and grassy slopes that surround the rest home and to behave naturally.

Two or three go downtown at a time and they might spend the rest of the day at an Alcoholics Anonymous meeting. If they ask to be driven downtown or to the AA meeting, the answer is "no."

"That's too easy. They must walk it," Ferguson said.

Ferguson's idea that an alcoholic must learn to face up to the world also applies when one has delirium tremens (DTs) and might need sedation.

—William A. Boucher

Peaceful, treed setting for finding a way back

"They don't get any hard drugs here. They have to go it the hard way and if the DTs get bad, they go to hospital," he said.

Ferguson's financial troubles started when his two partners decided to withdraw from the project—and they had the money.

As a result, he is left with patients for whom he collects between $135 and $165 a month from welfare agencies. The rent is $850 a month and there are four practical nurses on staff.

Then there's light, heat and and incidentals for the food bills, maintenance costs patients. Ferguson estimates he will need a subsidy of about $2,000 a month.

"I think there's a solution somewhere," said the medical orderly of 17 years experience. "It would be easy to turn this place into an ordinary rest home with private-paying patients, but this is not the solution right now."

During the time Belmont Heights has been open, it has discharged 13 persons, some of whom will find the world intolerably lonely and will likely return in a state of drunkenness.

Too often, says Ferguson, alcoholism is such a cycle, but there are a few cases — possibly only three out of 100 — that are rehabilitated and he things Belmont Heights might make a contribution.

Ferguson said that if his only interest was making money he could fill the place with other types of patients, those needing minimal care and he could pocket as much as $2,000 a month.

However, at this time he is losing money and a small rest home run by his wife is supporting themselves and their two children.

Reg Clarkson, Vancouver Island director of the Alcoholism Foundation, said officials of Royal Jubilee and St. Joseph's hospitals are prepared to write letters stressing the need for the alcholism facility as Belmont Heights.

"It is medical care of an intermediate nature. Our experience is that we encounter one person a day at our office who needs this type of care. There just is not enough of it," added Clarkson.

"I went to the welfare authorities on behalf of Mr. Ferguson and I have all the data supporting the need."

Worker Hurt

Paul Medrick, 49, of 17 Game, View Royal, was treated at St. Joseph's Hospital for a broken leg and released. A pile of plywood slipped from a cable and fell on him at B.C. Forest Products on Gorge Road, where he was working about 6:30 p.m. Friday, Victoria police reported.

Hospital Switch Favored

A proposal to add 150 extended-care beds to Gorge Road Hospital's existing plans for a unit of an identical size was accepted in principle by hospital authorities Friday.

•

Dr. Scott Wallace, Social Credit MLA for Oak Bay, suggested earlier that the 150 extended-care beds planned for Royal Jubilee should be switched to Gorge Road Hospital.

He said Royal Jubilee's cost estimates were far above government guidelines and, as a result, those plans might run into long delays. At the same time, Gorge Road, also planning a 150-bed extended care centre, produced estimates that were within the guidelines.

★ ★ ★

"Dr. Wallace probably has a very constructive suggestion," said Dr. A. C. Pickles, executive director of Royal Jubilee.

"If it is indeed possible that Gorge Road can accommodate an additional number of extended-care beds, and build them quickly and economically, let's get on with it because the need for them is terribly urgent."

Pickles said if Health Minister Ralph Loffmark and the regional hospital board authorize a fresh look at extended bed allocations, "then I'm quite sure the board (of management) of Royal Jubilee will give them every co-operation because our first concern is what's good for the community and the entire region."

★ ★ ★

At the same time, said Pickles, Royal Jubilee has not lost interest in the type of patient needing extended care.

"If we can get more mileage out of the Gorge Road Hospital quickly, let's do it now. Possibly in the future we can include extended care here," said the executive director.

Mrs. C. C. Warren, chairman of the board of Gorge Road Hospital, said the hospital would be happy to increase its extended care limit to 300 beds if it could do so quickly.

"We don't want to sit around for months," she said, adding that the hospital is close to calling tenders for its original 150-bed addition.

If the other 150 beds were switched from Royal Jubilee, Gorge Road Hospital's present plans would need revision and that would take a few months. However, Mrs. Warren said she hoped they wouldn't be shelved so long as to require an adjusted estimate because of rising construction costs.

★ ★ ★

Gorge Road Hospital's board of directors discussed Wallace's proposal at a meeting Thursday afternoon. They were first worried that another 150 beds would require a major renovation of the kitchen but administrator William Morrison assured trustees this would not be as gross as some may have feared.

Gorge Road currently has 99 beds for rehabilitative medicine — this is a level of care different from extended care — and it also hopes eventually to add to those facilities.

Wallace said Friday night he received two telephone calls expressing fear that his proposal would eliminate acute-care beds from Royal Jubilee's planning.

"This is not the case. Extended-care beds were the first phase of the overall regional hospital plan and their construction has nothing to do with the provision of acute beds," said Wallace.

Plus 5-Per-Cent Pay Cut

Haddock for Freeze

Victoria Mayor Courtney Haddock will ask delegates to the convention of the Canadian Association of Mayors and Municipalities in Halifax to approve a resolution urging the federal government to impose an immediate wage and price freeze.

"Something must be done to counteract the national trend towards more unemployment resulting from spiralling wages and prices," the mayor said in an interview late Thursday night.

★ ★ ★

"I will ask the convention to consider my proposal. Part of my resolution will state that those earning less than $2 an hour should be exempted from the proposed wage freeze," he said.

Haddock left early Friday morning to attend the annual convention which starts Monday.

"Freezing wages and prices will give more people a chance to keep their jobs. It's better to pay a little less to everyone than having to lay off a number of employees because wages are getting out of hand," the mayor said.

"In fact, it would even be better if a 5-per-cent wage cut could be imposed on all employees on a national level. This would create a great boom in employment. Again those earning less than $2 a hour could be exempted from such a move."

Haddock said he had already been assured of support by several mayors who will attend the convention.

Cement Firm Closed To 'Hasten' Peace

Ocean Cement Ltd. made its decision to suspend all cement sales in the province in the hope that it would hasten settlement of the present labor disputes, a spokesman for the company in Victoria said Friday.

The formal statement from the company was issued as unionists increased the tempo of their protests over the company closure.

About 40 construction tradesmen paraded in front of the company's Wharf Street offices in Victoria Friday morning to demand restoration of local sales to independent contractors.

★ ★ ★

Duncan contractors have also protested the refusal of B.C. Cement at Bamberton to sell cement for concrete locally, while shipping large quantities to the United States. B.C. Cement is a subsidiary of Ocean Cement.

The company said it issued the statement to make its position clear.

"The company believes that it is against the interest of the community when unreasonably high wage increases, which can only result in further inflation of living costs, are granted," said the statement.

"For this reason, although the company is not a member of the Construction Labor Relations Association, it is in sympathy with the efforts of that organization to resist reckless, inflationary demands for unrealistically high wage increases being made by construction trade unions.

"Hence the company made the decision to suspend all cement sales in the province in the hope that it will hasten the settlement of the present serious labor-management disputes," contined the statement.

The spokesman answered recent criticism of cement shipments to Seattle, by saying that there is no labor dispute in that area, and the company has a legal agreement with an American firm to ship certain minimum quantities each month.

"Charges have been made that it is illegal for the company to withhold cement from the local market," continued the statement.

"The company has been advised it is not illegal and welcomes the proposed investigation by the department of consumer affairs to clear up this question."

Ocean Cement's stand on the legality of its refusal to sell cement to local buyers was discussed by Victoria city council finance committee Thursday.

★ ★ ★

A proposal by Vancouver Island Building and Construction Trades Council that the company's busines licence be lifted was rejected.

City manager Dennis Young said the request was beyond the city's jurisdiction since there are no conditions attached to a trade licence except compliance with bylaws.

"There is no undertaking that he keep the premises open — he doesn't have to open if he doesn't want to," said Young.

The company gave three more reasons for the May 1 closure.

- Company operations on the mainland had halted April 9 when the teamsters were locked out during a wage dispute.
- Company business would be all but non-existent because of labor disputes in the construction industry.
- The towboat strike had made it impossible for the company to move cement or sand and gravel to its ready-mix depot on the mainland and Vancouver Island.

"Considering these disputes it is obvious that the company is losing large sums of money as each day passes and naturally is vitally concerned with a return to labor-management peace and resumption of its business," said the spokesman.

★ ★ ★

Two independent contractors who are also members of the carpenters union joined the demonstration outside Ocean Cement Friday morning.

The group was headed by John Schibli, secretary of Vancouver Island Building and Construction Trades Council. It included representatives from all construction unions, with support from the Boilermakers Union.

Meanwhile Duncan unionists are preparing a motorcade and demonstration for Tuesday to bring attention to the Bamberton Cement plant problem, the tow boat strike, lack of welfare money and the problems of getting unemployment insurance.

The motorcade, which is being organized by the IWA, the Carpenters Union and the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada, will leave Duncan at 10 a.m.

MLA Bob Strachan will head a deputation to the Bamberton cement plant on the way.

The demonstrators will continue to Victoria to present briefs to the Unemployment Insurance Commission, Welfare Minister Philip Gaglardi and Labor Minister Leslie Peterson.

Prior Poll Heavy

During a three-day advance poll, 115 Central Saanich property owners — 4.6 per cent of those eligible — cast ballots on a $2,600,000 sewer referendum.

Mayor Archie Galbraith said Friday night he is hoping the heavy turnout will continue through today's regular vote.

Polling stations at Brentwood and Keating elementary schools and at the municipal hall will be open from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Sewer vote facts are:

- Cost of referendum: $2,600,000.
- Amortization: 20 years.
- Areas to be sewered: Brentwood, Keating Heights, Saanichton and Turgoos Point.
- Charges to owner electors: $1 a month for all property owners; additional $3 a month for those to get sewers; additional $8 a month total $12. Connection charges will be extra.
- Proposal: sewers to secondary treatment plant, with 2,000 foot outfall 50 feet deep into Cordova Channel.
- Guarantors: Capital Region Board $1,200,000, Central Saanich $1,400,000.
- Government aid: $210,750 from Ottawa; $64,000 initially from the province.

Love—Soviet Style

Or: How to Succeed in Moscow by Renting Husband

By HARRY TRIMBORN
Colonist Los Angeles Times Service

MOSCOW — Boris is saving to buy an automobile with income earned from his underground job — husband-for-hire at 500 rubles per bride.

His occupation is one that women engage in, too, offering themselves as wives in return for a fee or favor.

It is not part of a sordid love-for-sale industry. Sex and love have nothing to do with it.

It's just that Boris and the other practitioners of his specialty are trying to get along with the Soviet system as best they can, to enjoy a few of the limited amenities that it has to offer.

Always Room

At least that's the way Boris' bride-to-be, Tanya, a petite, 23-year-old brunette, explains it.

"My philosophy," said Tanya, "is that everyone should learn to live with the political system he lives under. There's always room to make life a little more pleasant."

Tanya's philosophy would hardly suit her militant contemporaries in the United States. Yet it will lead her into marriage with Boris next month so she can get what many Soviet citizens yearn for — an apartment of their own, or a change to escape the dreary life of the countryside for the excitement of Moscow.

Tanya wants an apartment. And the easiest and quickest way to get one is through marriage. It's all made possible through the Soviet Union's extremely liberal marriage and divorce laws.

More Metres

Tanya explains her decision to marry Boris this way:

She cannot get her own apartment because of housing regulations that provide a minimum of nine square meters of floor space per person per family. She now has that mount in the 36-square-meter apartment she shares with her parents and sister.

If she were married she would be entitled to a minimum of 18 square meters for herself and her husband in a separate apartment.

Explaining her wishes to her friends, Tanya was introduced to Boris who agreed — for a 500 ruble fee — to marry Tanya. They would then go to the housing authorities as a married couple and get an apartment.

Only Tanya would move in. Boris would continue living elsewhere. The chances of his double residency being discovered would be nil, said Tanya.

Police Won't Care

"Obviously the police are not interested in spending time ferreting out all illegal residents," said Tanya. "Moscow is a big place and the police are busy enough with ordinary crimes and with drunks."

After a while, Tanya and Boris will divorce. In cases where there are no minor children, divorce in the Soviet Union is as simple as getting married — and as inexpensive.

The couple merely goes to the registry office and fills out a brief form, which is almost identical to an application for marriage. The reason for divorce is usually listed as "incompatibility."

Three months later — a period of grace to affect a possible reconciliation — the divorce becomes final. Community property unless there is a dispute, is split 50-50.

By September, Tanya will have fulfilled her wish. For under the housing regulations the divorced wife may retain possession of the apartment for as long as she wants it.

Boris will be happy, too. Said Tanya:

"He's trying to save 5,000 rubles for a car. It's his three-year plan, if you will. And he'll get if after he has married enough girls."

Boris also sells the use of his name to girls who want to live in Moscow legally after fleeing what Tanya called the "dull and hard life" of the country.

Because of the severe housing shortage and other factors, the government discourages a rush of rural citizens to the city. It requires all city residents to be registered. Without such registration, the girls, or any one else, cannot get a job, living quarters and, in the case of parents, cannot register children for school.

Few Arrests

Unregistered women in Moscow are automatically assumed to be living off a man, since they cannot legally hold a job. As such, they are living a "parasitical and immoral mode of life," subject to arrest or explusion from the city.

Yet few such cases are prosecuted. Again, the police have more important things to do.

While the Soviet authorities frown on such arrangements as contrary to socialist morality, Tanya, at least, thinks it is one of the areas that makes Soviet life less grim.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: On occasion you have admitted you made a mistake and changed your advice. I hope you will do so again. I refer to your counsel to the woman who didn't want children and married a man who said he didn't want children either. Seven years later he changed his mind. She was furious and signed her letter Betrayed. You advised counselling, called her "immature and selfish" — and said she would probably lose the guy if she didn't grow up.

Well, she might be immature and selfish, but she is also honest enough to admit the mother role is not for her. And what's so terrible about that? I see many women who would be better off if they had made the same decision — and so would their unwanted, ignored children.

The most pressing problems in the world today are overpopulation and pollution. And the second problem is linked to the first. It is a known fact that people are the greatest polluters. The last thing the world needs is more people. So I pick up the paper and see where Ann Landers tells a gal to get counselling so she will be able to tolerate kids she doesn't even want! Please — eat those words. — Siding With Her.

Dear Siding: Gulp, gulp, gulp. Consider the decision reversed. I would not, however, go so far as to agree with Paul Ehrlich's statement that "the mother of the year should be a sterilized woman — with two adopted children."

Dear Ann Landers: You have started quite a campaign. Several of my friends who had never given it a thought are now seriously considering donating their bodies to medical schools. Since you seem so fond of Harvard Medical School, I've decided it's the one for me.

But what if they don't rush my remains to Cambridge in time? I've been told medical schools will not accept a body if more than 12 hours have elapsed. What if I can't get into Harvard? — Tears in Lorrain, Ohio.

Dear Lorrain: Stop crying. Harvard will take you. They turn down only live people. Tell your lawyer, your doctor and the members of your family. Now!

There are new laws based on the Uniform Anatomical Gift Act which has simplified donating organs — as well as the entire body. The donation card system is considered a legal instrument. The card is witnessed, signed and carried at all times. It designates which organs the carrier wishes to donate. Although this is not an easy topic for most people to dwell on, a great many individuals are overcoming their squeamishness and putting the welfare of humanity first. The gift of sight to a blind person or additional years of life to someone with kidney failure is an endowment beyond compare.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a 15-year-old girl who is worried about my 17-year-old brother. A girl in my class is crazy about him and she won't let him alone. To look at this sex bomb you'd think she was 20. Her parents are divorced and she lives with her dad in a nifty apartment. Her dad is never in town. She drives his car all over and has a perfect setup — including a well-stocked liquor cabinet.

This tramp chases my brother night and day and he seems to enjoy it. His attitude is "What do I have to lose?" I worry about him. What can I do? — Little Sis.

Dear Sis: You can tell him what he has to lose: A paternity suit, a bout with VD, chances for a good education and marrying the girl of his choice — when he wants to get married.

Officer Wants Baby

NEW YORK (AP) — Brooklyn policeman Jim Scott, who rescued a newborn girl abandoned near death in a hotel wash basin last week, says he wants to adopt the child.

"I think I have more right to this baby than anybody," said Scott, 37, the father of three children.

★ ★ ★

"When I felt that child's heartbeat and knew there was a chance she might live, everything around me seemed to jump," he said Thursday night.

Scott, answering a call for assistance at the hotel May 28, found the baby lying motionless.

The infant was taken to the intensive care unit at Bellevue Hospital, where Scott has visited her daily at the end of his midnight-8 a.m. shift. Unofficially, he has given her the name Eileen.

★ ★ ★

"I don't want her to go to court and be raffled off," said the policeman, who with the aid of a police chaplain has applied to adopt the baby through the department of child welfare.

Scott and his wife Dolores have a son and two daughters — Danny, 14, Patricia 11, and Susan, 7. They own their own home in the Flatbush section of Brooklyn.

They were married in Port Angeles on June 1, 1920. Before his retirement Ritchie was superintendent of the Bank of Toronto building. He is an honorary member of the Saanich Anglers Association, Chinook Club and Victoria Fish and Game Association.

The couple received congratulatory messages from Lieutenant-Governor Nicholson, Prime Minister Trudeau, Premier and Mrs. Bennett and Victoria Mayor Courtney Haddock.

That's Mrs. Wilson

Touch of Steel With Poetry

By CAROL KENNEDY

LONDON (CP) — Mary Wilson, the shy chatelaine of 10 Downing Street, suffered one of her worst public ordeals Thursday night when a hostile mob jostled and separated the Wilsons on a meet-the-people campaign tour of south London.

As police stood by, apparently unaware of the prime minister's wife, a reporter jumped forward, put his arms around her and forced a pathway through the crowd to the prime minister's automobile.

★ ★ ★

Later, in Thames-side Putney, a boy threw a bag of talcum powder at her and the tour was marked by unusually violent heckling for a British election campaign, including shouts of "Kill Wilson."

For the quiet, poetry-writing daughter of the Congregational minister it must have been an unnerving experience.

But Mary Wilson, who admits that at the beginning of her husband's term she felt "physically sick every morning with the nervous tension involved," has a stoic touch of steel in her character. Being prime minister's wife, she says, "you are very much on your mettle."

Wilson

She still finds it hard to exchange social small-talk with strangers and her natural tendency to introversion has been accented in 5½ years as the prime minister's wife by a caution when dealing with reporters.

She had a rough ride with the satirists in the early days after chatting freely about such domestic topics as Harold's taste for HP sauce and confiding details of the family routine.

Since then, the satirical magazine Private Eye has run a regular column called Mrs. Wilson's Diary written in gushing style.

In an interview with this reporter three years ago, Mrs. Wilson said she found it amusing but could write it better herself. But on the whole, she does not relish being a constant target.

★ ★ ★

"Speaking quite generally, I don't think wives are fair game," she said in an interview during the campaign for the June 18 election. "After all, they have to take the husband's job along with the husband."

Germans To Aid Crippled

BONN (UPI) — The Upper House of West Germany's parliament approved a government plan today to provide $27,000,000 to help children whose birth deformities were traced to Thalidomide, a tranquilizer their mothers took during pregnancy.

The drug manufacturer, Gruenenthal Chemical Co. of Stolberg, has already pledged an equal amount to benefit 2,400 "Thalidomide children" in Germany and other nations.

The criminal trial of seven Gruenenthal executives went into its third year last month

Ambulatory Centre Praised

Patient and doctor acceptance of Royal Jubilee Hospital's new ambulatory care centre has been excellent, Dr. A. C. Pickles, executive director, said Friday.

The 22-bed unit was opened in the hospital's Bay Pavilion 2½ weeks ago. On Friday, it had 15 patients and Pickles expects the census will increase with each day.

"The doctors who are admitting patients to it find it is extremely helpful," he added.

The ambulatory care centre is for patients who are able to walk to the washroom, a lunchroom and to the nursing station for their drugs.

It is meant to take patients out of other parts of the hospital that are needed for the treatment of persons with more acute forms of disease.

Ottawa Hearing Involves Victoria

CRTC Ad Too Late

There was only one thing wrong with the Canadian Radio-Television Commission advertisement in Victoria's two daily newspapers Thursday afternoon and Friday morning.

The advertisement, about a June 15 CRTC hearing in Ottawa, said any comment or opposition to go before the hearing should be filed with the commission secretary in Ottawa — in 20 copies — on or before June 4, 1970.

June 4 was Thursday, which meant that anyone learning about the hearing from the advertisement had no time at all to prepare 20 copies.

The public hearing's agenda, according to the advertisement, includes a review of the ownership status of the licence of Victoria Cablevision Ltd.

Cablevision officials disclosed the matter involves a transfer of a small percentage of the stock. The CRTC ruled foreign ownership in any Canadian cablevision company must be no more than 20 per cent as of Sept. 1, 1970, and CBS now owns 25 per cent of the Victoria firm.

Cablevision has already sent an application to the CRTC reducing the CBS share to 20 per cent and transferring the difference to a Victoria organization. That was forwarded in mid-May.

Victoria Press Ltd. advertising officials said Friday an Ottawa advertising agency mailed a letter May 29 ordering the advertisements and asking publication at the "soonest possible" date.

The letter was received last Tuesday by Victoria Press, which immediately gave the CRTC ads "soonest possible" treatment allowed under publication deadlines.

There was no indication when the CRTC had sent its order to the Ottawa agency.

Painters' Representative Given Longer Tenure

A. H. (Gus) Gildemeester has been re-elected to serve another three years as business representative of the Victoria local of the Brotherhood of Painters and Allied Trades.

Gildemeester has served the 250-member Local 1163 as business representative for 10 years. He has been with the union more than 20 years.

The three-year term is new. In the past, elections covered only two years at a time.

MP Tells Esquimalt Students

Remember: Young Not Infallible

Youthful questioning of values is healthy but a nihilistic approach to problems must be avoided, Esquimalt-Saanich MP David Anderson warned 250 students at the Esquimalt high school's recognition ceremony Friday..

"Better institutions and a better society simply do not spring up automatically as a result of destroying the old," the Liberal said.

"Society will progress, adapt and improve itself faster by constant, constructive criticism and adaptation than it will by rejecting all that exists now, by destroying our institutions and then thinking about building a new system, the outline of which is unknown."

Anderson, who pointed out that, at 32 years of age, he was "in the middle" and therefore had a different view of the generation gap, told the students to remember the young are not infallible.

Eighteen-year-old Norman Lock was the valedictorian for the Esquimalt group.

The Mount View high school recognition ceremony meant perhaps as much to principal Robert Huddleston as it did to the 250 students involved.

After 30 years with the Greater Victoria school board, the 60-year-old Huddleston will be retiring at the end of the school year.

He first came to Victoria in the 1930s and served as a mathematics teacher until 1956 when he was appointed vice-principal of Mount View.

Huddleston became principal in 1962 and has remained in that position until now.

Eighteen-year-old Tanta De Staffany delivered the Mount View valedictory address.

Victorian Going to Africa On Educational Mission

Jack Dalgleish, education director for the Greater Victoria school district, will leave in August for a two-year term in Zambia where he will establish a vocational training program.

Dalgleish, 52, part of a team being sent by the Canadian International Development Agency, will serve as its director of trade qualifications and standards. Together, the team will establish a framework for trades training in Zambia.

They will be based in Lusaka, the capital, Zambia, the former Northern Rhodesia, is in east Central Africa and is predominantly native African.

A former mainland teacher, Dalgleish came to Victoria in 1955 as supervisor of industrial arts and vocational education and director of night school classes. He became director of adult education in September, 1961.

He will be accompanied by his wife on the Zambian tour of duty.

Dalgleish's replacement has not been named.

Baptists

Glorified Burials Assailed

BRANTFORD, Ont. (CP) — About 1,000 Baptist ministers and laymen from Ontario and Quebec will be asked this week to try to halt the "Glorifying" of "physical remains" and return to simple funerals.

A resolution to be put before the annual Ontario-Quebec Baptist Conference here calls on Baptists to "discourage each other from financial excesses in the burial of a friend or a member of the family."

It says that "many of our funeral customs contradict the Christian emphasis on the eternal value of the soul of man by glorifying his physical remains."

As an alternative, the resolution suggests that "we seek to treat one another in love and respect throughout life so that we will have no guilt feelings which we may seek to compensate for by excessive spending at the time of death."

It also suggests that as a memorial, donations should be made to Baptist organizations such as the Canadian Cancer Society.

The convention, which started Thursday, it scheduled to end Sunday.

Bicycle And Beard

VANCOUVER (CP) — A unitarian Church minister wants all men in North America to stop shaving, as a start on the elimination of "unnecessary products."

Rev. Jack Kent, minister of the North Shore Unitarian Church, told a Simon Fraser University audience in suburban Burnaby that North Americans spend $235,000,000 a year on razor blades, plus another $161,000,000 on shaving preparations.

He said his figures are for 1966, "and in the same year the total United Nations budget was $155,000,000."

"Each beard would be a clear statement to the world that we intend to repossess ourselves as men and will not continue to be creatures dominated by the latest technological trick of the most recent advertising campaign from Madison Avenue," Kent said.

He also called upon women to become proud of their natural hair, saying that American women in 1966 spent 1.6 billion on hair sprays, deodorants, lipsticks, hair coloring, face creams, mouthwash, hair tonic, nail polish, perfumes, makeup bases and hand lotion.

Kent said courage to drop other unnecessary products might then come. These might include paper towels, paper bags, paper napkins, paper handkerchiefs and pesticides.

He also urged a drive on the car industry and fossil fuels.

He said he plans to stop shaving, himself, as of today. And he is going to buy a bicycle.

Musical Play Today

Blue Ribbon Affair

A humorous musical play pointing up everyone's dependence on others will be presented at 8 p.m. today and 7:30 p.m. Monday in the auditorium of the Church of Jesus Christ of the Latter-Day Saints, 2990 Quadra.

A Blue Ribbon Affair, with a cast of 34, has the setting of a country fair and is presented in the spirit of 1896 to honor the 100th anniversary of the founding of the Young Women's Mutual Improvement Association. Sponsor is the Parent-Youth Program of the MIA.

Director is Ronald Powlan, who directed Oklahoma and Music Man in Calgary.

Interdependence is the theme stressed in the 1969-70 Parent-Youth Program.

★ ★ ★

Says a spokesman: "Very little can be accomplished by one alone; everyone needs to depend on others for many things. A Blue Ribon Affair is concerned with the great influence that other people, relatives, friends and just "community folks," have on children. It depicts the trials and joys of health competition, and is fun and fast-moving. It takes co-operation in a family situation to be successful and happy as a family."

A Blue Ribbon Affair is a church building fund project.

South America, Africa

Church, State Storm Brews

By GEORGE CORNELL

NEW YORK (AP) — Storms are threatening between church and state in several countries in South America and Africa. The sharpest, open conflict seems to be building up in white-run Rhodesia.

There, Protestant and Roman Catholic churchmen have asserted their defience of a new land act dividing the country into black and white areas and prohibiting racial mixing in church worship or institutional staffs without special permits.

The church "cannott in conscience and will not in practice accept any limitation of our freedom to deal with all people irrespective of race," the Roman Catholic prelates have declared, calling the discriminatory laws "contrary to Christian faith."

★ ★ ★

Anglican, Methodist and United churches subsequently took their stand with the Roman Catholics in a common front challenging the regime's segregation policies and fund cuts for mission schools for Africans.

The churches also said they will disobey a law requiring that they register as "voluntary organizations" and will close hospitals and mission schools rather than submit to the restrictions.

Strains between church and state also were intensifying in several South American countries, particularly in Brazil, on the eve of a scheduled global assembly there this summer of the Lutheran World Federation.

The German Lutheran committee, voicing dismay at reports of "tortures and other atrocities" abridging human rights under Brazil's military regime, has asked a review of the decision to hold the meeting there.

★ ★ ★

Brazilian churchmen themselves have run into increasing trouble with the government. Eleven priests are in prison on charges of aiding revolutionaries, and a bishop has been indicted on subversion charges after publicly complaining that a parishioner was tortured while in army custody.

In some other South American countries, including Paraguay and Columbia, there also have been rising tensions between churchmen and government.

The Paraguayan government some time ago shut down the Roman Catholic weekly, Communidad, for its protests against alleged "persecution" of the church. Two militant priests were expelled. Archbishop Mena Porta protested the alleged beating of three other priests.

★ ★ ★

In Spain, a group of 150 priests have protested the sentencing of a fellow priest, Rev. Mariano Gamo, to three years in prison for subversion, after he spoke against social-economic deprivations of his parishioners.

In Burgos, Spain, several Basque priests, in provinces of agitation for regional autonomy, have been imprisoned.

Church Clothes Orphans

The congregation of Esquimalt United Church, with the assistance of one of its members, Lt.-Cmdr. Peter MacArthur, engineer officer in HMCS Mackenzie, has presented bundles of used children's clothing to orphanages in Kobe, Japan.

Prior to the ship's departure for Japan and Expo 70 celebrations, five large bundles of clothing were received from another Esquimalt United Church family, Lt.-Cmdr. and Mrs. Edward Alexander.

Permission to transport the clothing to Japan was granted by the ship's captain, Commander Ralph MacLean.

Although originally destined for Hong Kong, it was decided by Lt.-Cmdr. MacArthur and the squadron Protestant chaplain, Lt.-Cmdr. Irvine Hare, that it would be more appropriate during Japan's Expo year to give the clothing to Japanese orphans in Kobe.

Fifty children from various city orphanages were entertained aboard the Mackenzie by volunteers from the ship's company, headed by Commissioned Officer Robert Hilts and LS William Layman.

The clothing was received by Hiroski Kaneda of Kobe's city hall staff in charge of welfare.

Rock Oratorio Final Project Of School Year

The modern idiom in youth music—rock—will be heard Monday and Wednesday evenings in First United Church—but it will be a special kind of rock.

The event is the Sunday School's final project of the year, the Rock Oratorio Joseph, written in England and first performed in St. Paul's Cathedral.

Joseph will be offered here—at 8:30 p.m. Monday and Wednesday in the church sanctuary—by a group of Victoria rock musicians featuring Robbie Gillespie's singing, together with the Sunday School children's choir.

The music has been arranged by Bill Sample and Kahlen Wood. Admission to the oratorio is free.

Man's search for a "first cause" leads to both scientific and spiritual answers included in the Lesson-Sermon to be read in all Christian Science churches this Sunday.

Entitled God the Only Cause and Creator, the Lesson-Sermon quotes from the prophet Isaiah:

"As the earth bringeth forth her bud, and as the garden causeth the things that are sown in it to spring forth; so the Lord God will cause righteousness and praise to spring forth before all the nations."

The words and healing works of Christ Jesus are cited in these words from Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures, by Mary Baker Eddy:

"Physical causation was put aside from first to last by this original man, Jesus. He knew that the divine Principle, Love, creates and governs all that is real."

□

There's a change this summer in Music in the Cathedral, offered each Saturday during July and August at Christ Church Cathedral.

Instead of the noon-hour organ recital, concerts this year will be offered at 4 p.m. and will include vocalists as well as organists. First will be July 4, with organist Beal Thomas and soprano Madeleine Groos.

□

A special service honoring pioneers of the parish and senior citizens of Cadboro Bay will be held at 10 a.m. June 14 in St. George's Anglican Church.

Plans grew from a suggestion originating with the provincial government that old-timers be given special recognition by churches of the region.

Invited to the service are founders of the parish, now about 30 years old, and any other old-timers or pioneers of the area no matter what their church affiliation.

Senior laymen will take part in the service, and the address will be given by diocesan lay reader Arnold Edmonds who, when St. George's was established as a mission of St. Luke's Anglican Church, was a warden at St. Luke's.

Minister Guest Speaker

Dr. T. E. Floyd Honey, general secretary to the Canadian Council of Churches, will address the Victoria Council of Churches at an open meeting June 17 at Eskuimalt United Church. He will also preach at First United Church on June 21.

Honey, appointed to his present position in 1968, was for three years previously secretary for mission and service, World Council of Churches, New York, and in that capacity visited Boliva, Brazil, Panama, Mexico, Jerusalem, Cairo, Switzerland, Sweden, France and Britain.

He was born in Wooler, Ont., and ordained a minister in the United Church in 1940. From 1946 to the end of 1951 he was a missionary in West China, and in 1949 joined the staff of the West China Union Theological College in Chengtu, Szechuan, as a New Testament teacher.

Back in Canada, Honey in 1953 was named associate secretary to the Board of World Mission, which involved travel to countries in Africa, Asia, Europe and South America.

Special Day To Honor Old-Timers

Special services will be held each evening next week, except Saturday, at First Church of the Nazarene, 2671 Quadra, when the principal speaker will be Rev. Alex Patterson, Edmonton evangelist.

★ ★ ★

Patterson is an elder in the Church of the Nazarene who has served as pastor in Edmonton, Vancouver and Abbotsford. He was elected to Parliament in 1953, and for 11 years served on many committees and delegation boards including external affairs, defence and public service.

He went to Paris to a NATO conference, was observer at the United Nations, and attended conferences in Jamaica and the United States as well as Canada.

The announcement of his coming visit adds:

★ ★ ★

"His rich insight into world affairs makes his ministry rich and meaningful as he presents the Gospel of Christ as man's only hope, and challenges both young and old to take Christ's way for true happiness and success."

Services at the church will open at 7:30 p.m. daily.

Two Types Suggested

LINTON, England (AP) — Delegates representing 5,000 Roman Catholic priests in England and Wales called Wednesday for the ordaining of two classes of married men.

But the 94 delegates otherwise backed the policy of a celibate priesthood and said the vow of celibacy by priests already ordained should be kept.

The two types of married men recommended for the priesthood were married ministers in other churches who convert to Roman Catholicism and "mature married men."

Church Minstrels Slate City Concerts

Greater Victoria will hear in the coming week a series of concerts by a group of young folk singers whose songs range all the way from contemporary to sacred.

The Valley Minstrels — two girls and three young men — will give at least 14 performances, with a final concert at 7 p.m. Friday in Centennial Square.

The Valley Minstrels, all students last winter at the Mennonite Brethren Bible Institute in Clearbrook, are here at the invitation of the Saanich Community Church, whose pastor is John Baerg.

★ ★ ★

They include Carol Zerbe from Japan, Evelyn Janzen of Yarrow, Ken Wiebe of Chilliwack, Ron Balzer from Alberta and Wes Schroeder from Saskatchewan. With their manager, Bible Institute staff member Wally Unger, formerly of Ontario, they are in the midst of a six-week tour in May and June, including the Fraser Valley-Vancouver area and ranging north to Prince George.

Purpose of the tour is to share some "solutions that work." The Minstrels maintain "peace with Christ gives young people and adults the ability to cope with all of today's conflicts."

★ ★ ★

They specialize in the folk idiom, secular and sacred, as well as gospel songs and hymns.

The Minstrels will be heard at several high schools and churches, Goodwill Enterprises for the Handicapped, Saanich Senior Citizens Activity Centre, Queen Alexandra Solarium, the Tsartlip Indian school, and on CHEK-TV's Noon Show Monday.

BUREAU OF USELESS INFORMATION: Friday's answer — A week of movie-grabbag questions ended with the 1934 movie 20th Century, which referred to a train; the Titfield Thunderbolt, a locomotive, and the 1934 MGM film Manhattan Melodrama, a routine romance that got on the front pages because John Dillinger saw it just before he was shot.

Today's question — Six old movies had the same first word in their two-word titles and the second words were Egypt, Foxes, Caesar, Kidnappers, Minister and Women. Simply supply the first word and the name of the lady playing the title role in Egypt. Answers Tuesday.

Opening lead: Six of ♡.

Take a look at the trump combination in this deal. Undoubtedly enough holding and you would hardly think there could be much room for doubt concerning the best method of play, yet actually there is quite a lot to think about.

You lose the first trick to East's ace of hearts and then you win the diamond return. The only problem is to avoid losing a trump trick.

It would clearly be wrong to take a finesse straight off, since you might lose it to a singleton queen. Correct, therefore, is to start by cashing either the king or the ace of trump, and is makes quite a difference which one you choose.

If you cash the ace, you are bound to lose a trump trick whenever either one of the defenders started life with Q-x-x-x. But if you cash the king, you can still cope with the possibility of East having the Q-x-x-x.

Accordingly, you lay down the king. The next problem is how to continue when both defenders follow with a small trump.

You intend to finesse against East, of course — but do you lead the ten from dummy, or a low card?

If the opponents' spades are 3-2 it won't make the slightest difference which card you lead, but on the other hand, whenever East started with four spades, there will be an advantage in leading the ten. The ten will no doubt be covered by the queen, but after winning this with the ace you are left with a marked finesse against East's nine when West shows out.

On the other hand, if you were to lead the deuce from dummy and finesse the jack, it would hold all right but then you would be bound to lose a trick to East's Q-9.

It is quite surprising how frequently it pays to lead a high card when taking a finesse in trumps — the more so since it goes against the normal theory that it is usually best to lead a low card unless you have a strong sequence of honors.

Merger Vote Nanaimo's First

By LYNNE WALLER

NANAIMO — In 1874 the city of Nanaimo was first incorporated. The population was 1,500 and the first mayor was Mark Bate.

Today 15,380 ratepayers will be eligible to vote on amalgamation with five neighboring districts. If more than 60 per cent favor amalgamation, Nanaimo will re-incorporate, as the province's fourth largest city, with a population of 34,000, although some municipalities such as Saanich have a higher population.

The vote is the result of recommendations appearing in a study on local government which took regional staff almost two years to prepare.

The regional committee, formed to look into the state of local government in the area, found that in Nanaimo, Departure Bay, Northfield, Wellington, Harewood and Chase River, there are 25 different government agencies operating.

★ ★ ★

The committee was headed by Mrs. Beryl Bennett and its members were Steve Plecas of Harewood, Nanaimo Alderman Mrs. G. L. Hall, George Milford of Northfield and Mrs. Ada Howden of Wellington.

The 155-page report was compiled by regional staff who did their own studies and used information supplied by fire and improvement districts, the city, Greater Nanaimo Sewerage and Water Board and other organizations and firms with public functions.

The main point made in the report was that government was fragmented in Nanaimo and the five surrounding districts, yet, together, they formed one urban community.

The report said the Greater Nanaimo area was suffering because of the large number of government agencies, overlapping jurisdiction in some fields and absence of jurisdiction in other fields, a lack of uniformity in the standard of services provided by the different areas and a lack of over-all planning.

On May 6, Municipal Affairs Minister, Dan Campbell spoke at a Nanaimo Chamber of Commerce meeting and set today as voting day.

He said the vote would be held under section 18 of the Municipal Act which states that approval requires a 60 per cent over-all majority, rather than 60 per cent in each community.

If the referendum passes, an interim city council, with representation from all six communities, will be set up immediately and remain in office until the end of the year.

The minister said that if amalgamation took place, funds held in reserve by any of the communities must be specifically allocated for use in that community. Existing debts for local sewer and water systems would continue to be the responsibility of the individual communities for five years, although the services would be administered by the enlarged city.

After five years, the council of the day will decide whether the city will assume the sewer and water debts or continue the local charges.

Existing debts in the six communities, other than those for sewer and water, would be assumed by the new city upon amalgamation, said Campbell.

A group of 26 citizens formed the Citizens Committee for a New Nanaimo. Chairman Ted Barsby said he and the others felt that on such an extremely vital issue it was important for the residents of the area to be fully informed.

Barsby and executive members Bruce Meikle and Dave Stupich embarked on a speaking tour of the community, talking to people at improvement and fire district public meetings and privately to clubs.

★ ★ ★

The two major objections they encountered were from ratepayers, concerned their taxes would jump if amalgamation was approved, and from people who wanted more time to study the issue.

Gordon Wickham and Bert Ogden, two member of the citizens' committee, issued a statement supporting amalgamation but objecting to the speed with which the vote was called.

The committee ran into no organized resistance but this week learned that a group of people, unidentified so far, have been operating a counter-telephone campaign urging ratepayers to vote against the referendum.

An advance poll held this week attracted 409 voters, an unusually large turnout.

This is Nanaimo's first amalgamation vote although there have been four boundary extensions — in 1887, a small portion of the south end; 1927, Fairview district; 1946, a small portion of the south end and a section of lower Townsite.

In 1952, the city's area doubled when the boundaries were extended to include Brechin and Acacia. The addition of 3,500 people pushed the population of the city up to almost 11,000.

Barsby, a school trustee for six years and Nanaimo alderman from 1964 to 1967, said that for 12 years amalgamation had been discussed by public bodies in Nanaimo.

"The concept is not new," he said, but for the first time it had come to a vote because of the work of the regional district.

It was difficult to reach any conclusions before because of the sheer number of people involved in governing the area, he added.

Monastery Grows In Valley

By KLAUS MUENTER

COWICHAN STATION — With the Koksilah River below and a seemingly endless tract of wooded land behind, three monks of the Community of Christian Brothers have begun to establish a monastery for soul-searching retreat.

●

Faith, hard labor and nature seem to blend into a creed which, although as old as man, has become alienated in the minds of many electronics-oriented people.

The three men behind the project are Brother Francis, Brother David and David Doerr, 19, who will become Brother Michael later this month.

Whie Brother David is on leave in the U.S., the two other members of the small community are just completing the first buiding which will house their living quarters and the monastery's dining room.

★ ★ ★

All three are members of the Anglican faith. Doerr, originally from West Vancouver and for the past eight years of Duncan, joined the community a year ago after studies at the University of Victoria.

Brother David came from the U.S. about three years ago to establish communities of brothers across Canada, but later decided to remain in the Koksilah River Valley.

Brother Francis explained, "Each community is an autonomous unit with its own rules and regulations," and without dogmatic pressures peope will be able to spend peaceful hours in congenial companionship.

He said, "Men will be able to come here to physical rest and spiritual exercise. Through silence, meditation and thought they may again get in contact with themselves and with God." The brothers vow to common goods, celibacy and unity.

To keep their independence and integrity they make money by working out and pooling their earned wages. Brother Francis works at the Youbou sawmill. He maintains this type of work provides the link with people the church would not reach otherwise.

Now 29 years old, Brother Francis always wanted to be a monk. His desire stems from his early association with monks at San Francisco who educated him since he was in Grade 5.

He joined the Community of Christian Brothers 10 years ago. Now he holds a degree in theology and arts.

He said, "We keep abreast of anything that is new in the Christian world." Since coming to Vancouver Island he has been active in the community and until recently was a director of the Duncan and District Association for Retarded Children.

★ ★ ★

He said when he and Brother David arrived in the Duncan area they found part of the local clergy helpful, particularly one Anglican minister who is in charge of St. Peter's Church, a Lutheran pastor and Catholic priests.

Latest member of the community, Doerr said he met the brothers first at Maple Bay a little more than a year ago and he thought that in the community he could develop a relationship with God.

The two young men at the monastery enjoy the company of two dogs, Jerry and Martin, who accompany them daily down the steep bank to the crystal-clear water of the Koksilah River which at that point runs swiftly through a marble-like rock formation.

Fiddlers in Dozens

String Thing Fit for King

By BERT BINNY

Old King Cole, according to the most unimpeachable authorities, called for — and got — his fiddlers three.

Had this merry old soul been at the Newcombe Auditorium Friday night, he might well have been both surprised and delighted. On hand were no fewer than 45 fiddlers, 26 pianists, three cellists and three violists.

★ ★ ★

The occasion was a benefit concert given by the violin and piano students of Frona Colquhoun with a notable assist by members of the Saanich Peninsula Orchestra which is directed by Dorothy Evans.

There was a large audience which suggested that St. Alphonsus School at Kurseong in India, the beneficiary, might do very well. Incidentally, it was pointed out that this school is not wholly dependent on charity. The students — over 1,000 of them now — work out some of their education.

At least 38 of the violin students from the Colquhoun studios were on hand. The concert started with several promising soloists. Danny Cushing, Susan Wait, Michelle McConachie and Hilary Wallis.

★ ★ ★

A quite impressive group then played Long, Long Ago and The Two Grenadiers. Above all, they showed a very determined attack, particularly noticeable with the latter item.

This group played with accompanist Rita Wallis who was as sympathetic as she was tireless. Her's was a very taxing job.

★ ★ ★

Next, the 13 members of the orchestra accompanied further groups of violinists. First there were 15, then 25, then 32 and 35 and, for the grand finale preceding the intermission, the whole 38.

Whatever their technical errors, they all went at it with a real will.

The second half of the program was occupied by 26 pianists and a string quartette. Here, again, there was some variation in accomplishment but the genuine effort was always there.

★ ★ ★

It should also be noted that the vast majority of the young violinists ranged in age from just-turned-five to nine with most in the five-to-seven group. They tended very much to put in hot dispute the old adage that it takes four years to learn to play the violin badly.

Unless, of course, they started fiddling before they started walking?

Wage Talks Resume, Progress Hushed

Royal Jubilee Hospital and its 900-member employees' association have resumed contract negotiations but there won't be any progress reports until there is a specific development.

Dr. A. C. Pickles, the hospital's executive director, said Friday that both parties have agreed there will be no press releases while talks are in progress.

The Royal Jubilee Hospital Employees' Association announced last week it would offer to sign a five-year contract. Wage increase during the firs two years during the first two years the remainder of the economic clauses would be based on the cost of living index.

Earlier, the hospital said it would be laying off 28 employees because of the provincial government's spending freeze.

However, Pickles said Friday there has been a reassessment and fewer than 28 will be dismissed. He declined to say how many will get their notices next week.

Persons laid off will not get severance pay and will not qualify for unemployment insurance benefits.

Bursaries Due For Pupils

PORT ALBERNI — Port Alberni branch of the Canadian Mental Health Association is planning to establish bursaries for students wishing to take up careers in psychiatric sciences.

The announcement by Mrs. W. J. Corker, president, said the yearly bursaries, not less than $100, would be awarded to local graduate students.

Accelerated emphasis on prevention of emotional illness require more psychiatric nurses, social workers, teachers and others to work with disturbed adults and children, Mrs. Corker said.

Tahsis Sawmill Closes Down

TAHSIS — Tahsis Co. sawmill at Tahsis, on the west coast of Vancouver Island, closed down Friday, putting about 350 men out of work.

About 100 men will remain at work for a while to operate the shipping and loading departments until current orders are filled, a company spokesman said.

He blamed the closure on the falling log inventory brought about by the towboat strike, and by the depressed state of the lumber market.

The mill, he said, would remain closed for at least two weeks and he expected most employees to take their vacation pay to tide them over.

Even if the towboat strike is settled, he said, the mill would remain closed until new markets were found.

Healthy Neglect

One of the most important lessons the novice gardener must learn is not to fuss unduly over newly planted shrubs, trees, perennial flowers and lawns.

These plants are rather like the small child subjected to too much mothering — they never do quite so well in later life as those treated to a little wholesome neglect.

If the planting site has been selected intelligently and the ground properly prepared, and if the plant was set in the ground correctly, there isn't very much more you can do for it until it has settled down in its new environment. In fact, considerable damage can be done by trying to push the plant along prematurely.

★ ★ ★

The time to stock the soil with long-lasting and slow-acting nutrients, the time to ensure against dryness at the roots, the time to improve the natural texture of the soil is before planting, not after. And in the case of new lawns, the grass will prosper best if its care is limited to conscientious and frequent mowing, and deep but infrequent watering during its first summer.

Using weedkillers and high-power forcing fertilizers will hinder rather than help the young grasses in their effort to become established. There shouldn't be any need for either 2,4-D weedkiller or for fertilizer if the site was prepared with proper care.

Any perennial plant — and this includes trees, shrubs and lawn grasses — needs time to adjust to its new home before it can forge ahead. It must develop a vigorous root system, happily "married" to the soil, before it can put on very much in the way of topgrowth.

Forcing fertilizers on lawns, therefore, are more likely to be a hindrance than a help in the early stages, since they tend to encourage the growth of leaf and stem at the expense of root development — topgrowth which cannot be supported by an inadequate root system.

The newly-planted tree or shrub should have a whole year to grow before any stimulants are given. Don't expect too much in the way of aboveground performance during this 12-month period—the important growth is going on down below the soil surface, and the topgrowth will leap ahead in the plant's own good time.

Every plant suffers mutilation, injury and shock to some extent when it is planted or transplanted, no matter how carefully the job is done. Tiny, invisible root hairs are torn and broken, and these are the "mouths" through which your plant must take in its food and water. These root hairs must be regrown before new topgrowth can commence, and in the meantime, the plant lives upon nutrients stored in its tissues, like a hibernating bear.

Until the plant grows some new feeding roots, the amount of topgrowth that can be sustained is limited. This is why a good gardner prunes his trees and shrubs drastically during transplanting — to reduce the strain on the root system.

This is why evergreens so often shed their needles or leaves after transplanting. Far from being abnormal or bad, this leaf-shedding is just the plant's way of balancing its budget — of adjusting its moisture expenditure to its moisture income.

The time to think about feeding new plants is after new growth starts in the leaves and shoot tips. Until then, all they need is firm anchorage, protection against extremes of wetness or dryness, and freedom from the nagging attentions of their owners.

ARTHUR HOPPE

Gnader's Graders

The end of Ralph Gnader's career as a champion of consumer safety was predictable from the day he launched his final crusade.

Gnader and his famed "Gnader's Graders" had grimly warned the public of the dangers inherent in automobiles, food additives, cigarettes, conglomerates, chicken, the ICC, pesticides, poverty, smoking on buses, pollution (both air and water) and Senator Muskie.

★ ★ ★

Gnader cited not only "sexy books, movies and plays," but particularly sexy advertisements in newspapers and magazines and on television.

"Anyone who has watched a commercial in which a scantily clad young lady sports herself on the beach with a half-nude young gentleman," he said, "must agree that the sponsor is not only selling beer but sex."

Gnader said his Gnader's Graders had collected statistics showing that as a result of the sex industry's "blatant disregard for consumer safety," Americans had suffered 43,617 untimely heart attacks, 73,002 slipped discs and one broken leg.

This last, he said, was incurred by gentlemen watching a shaving lotion commercial. When the sexy young lady said enticingly, "Take it all off . . .," he nervously backed away from his set, tripped over a Turkestan hassock and fell out his second-story window.

With few new worlds to conquer, it was not surprising that Gnader, with more valor than discretion, chose to take on the giant of them all — the multi-billion-dollar American sex industry.

★ ★ ★

His charges electrified an already nervous nation. In a week, he was back on the top of the best-seller lists with his sensational book on the subject — Unsafe at any Time.

In nationally televised testimony before the Senate Committee on Affairs, Gnader said sex had become a $6,300,000,000 business.

"As with other products, the manufacturers are governed solely by the profit motive," he said, "and give no thought whatsoever to the dangerous conditions they create for the consumer."

★ ★ ★

Gnader closed by demanding "vigorous legislation to protect the consumer." He urged that all young ladies who appear bare or half-bare in movies, plays, advertisments or commercials be clearly tatooed with the message:

"WARNING: Young ladies may be hazardous to your health."

★ ★ ★

Unfortunately, the committee chairman, Senator Uriah Sniles, 91, said he didn't know what on earth Gnader was talking about.

Undaunted, Gnader and his Gnader's Graders launched a direct-action campaign coast-to-coast to warn the public. At 2 a.m. each day, they would run through apartment buildings from Greenwich Village to the Sunset Strip, hammering on every door and shouting through every keyhole:

"For heaven's sakes, be careful!"

In two weeks, only a few Gnaders Graders were still fit for duty and they were looking for other, less hazardous, work.

★ ★ ★

The public's reaction to Gnader's campaign was precisely the same as to his warnings about driving cars, smoking cigarettes or consuming food additives: "I'm not indulging in sex any more," said a typical young bachelor. "Nor any less."

Gnader, discouraged by the now-clear lesson that the public puts pleasure above safety, bought a 620-horsepower Belchfiere-8, a carton of unfiltered cigarettes and joined the Sexual Freedom League.

He left a note saying he'd decided to take his own life but, like most Americans, he was going to have a good time doing it.

Piranha Foiled

Peter O'Toole, back in London from Venezuela (and glad of it), disclosed that he was almost fish food when he fell overboard while filming Murphy's War. They were tying up the boat at the mouth of the Orinoco where it joins the Amazon River, when his foot was caught in a rope and he tumbled over. He was back in the boat before you could say piranha. The waters are full of these fish who can eat a man in minutes. It was an exciting two months but, after a week's rest, Peter will work in London—his co-star is his wife Sian—then 10 days in Malta. After which, he will take a long vacation in his beloved Ireland.

★ ★ ★

It is always a happy and sad time when a picture is finished. Happy because it is over and sad for the same reason. You rarely see the people with whom you have lived at close quarters for a quarter of a year. The late Sir Alexander Korda once said, "It is so difficult to make film, that we should be praised, even if it is a bad one."

★ ★ ★

With Faye Dunaway expected back in Padua, where Marcello Mastroianni is filming The Priest's Wife, the paparrazzi from Rome are camping on the doorstep of his hotel. The couple are careful, and have rarely been photographed togoether, but they will have to watch out for those long lenses that can bore through the wall of a mountain — or the wall of a bedroom, as Elizabeth Taylor discovered during the height of the Liz-Eddie-Dickie idyll.

★ ★ ★

An American producer in London is the proud father of a baby, born to his socialite girl friend. Everyone is happy except the producer's wife, who recently returned from Hollywood to join her non-loving spouse.

★ ★ ★

The unhappiest man in all the world today is composer-producer, Dmitri Tiomkin. He spent five precious years of his life—he is not young—putting together and finally making a film about Tchaikovsky. Warner Brothers were to release it. The Russian government was behind it. When Warners were taken over recently by the Kinney conglomerate, the new studio heads were this way—that way about Dmitri's film. I believe he asked President Nixon to speak on his behalf. It would be an insult to Russia, which financed the expensive production. I saw Tiomkin a couple of months ago and he believed it had been straightened out, that Warners would take the film for the United States. Now it is positive that Warners will not release the picture and no one seems to be rushing to take it over. The fact that Ken Russell has made a mod film about Tchaikovsky as a homosexual has a great deal to do with the current lack of enthusiasm for Dmitri's version. No wonder he is feeling ill and spending a lot of time at his doctor's.

SYDNEY HARRIS

To suggest that something called "science" is conquering something called "disease" is more illusion than fact. What has happened is that the diseases of deprivation have been replaced by the diseases of affluence; especially our biggest killer of men in their best years, coronary thrombosis, which is hardly known in more primitive societies.

★ ★ ★

How can "democracy" be said to operate at the local level when only eight per cent of voters in New York City, in the week after election, could recall correctly the name of even one of the several judges for whom they had voted the previous Tuesday?

★ ★ ★

I haven't seen the new Bible yet, but I hope it's changed the words that needed to be changed in order to sharpen their meaning for modern people. "It is more blessed to give than to receive" is a religious statement some may doubt; but "It is more gratifying to give than to receive" is a psychological truth no mature person can deny.

★ ★ ★

Perhaps the chief difference between the romanticist and the realist was most tersely expressed by David Wilkerson: "Love is not only something you feel — it is something you do." By treating love as an "emotion," the romanticist depletes it; by treating it as a "process," the realist spreads and strengthens it.

Urbanitis Killing Emblem

—Canadian Forestry Service—Victoria
Pacific flowering dogwood

By DIANE JANOWSKI

* * *

The provincial flower is taking a beating because of urban expansion.

An infection is striking and killing Pacific Flowering Dogwood trees in natural stands in areas where they have been disturbed by residential development.

* * *

Most losses to date, according to the insect and disease survey of the federal Forest Research Laboratory on West Burnside Road, have been observed at lower elevations on Vancouver Island, the Gulf Islands and the Lower Fraser Valley.

"It's wherever built-up areas have occurred," said Alex Molnar, head of the survey. "We've been aware of this for several years now, but it's increasing because the factors that bring it about have been intesnsifying."

The infection first occurs in the form of stem cankers — a crackling of the bark that allows an infectious fungus disease to eat into the tree.

* * *

It girdles the trunk, killing the bark and underlying wood. This cuts off the tree's food supply, causing a deterioration in flower clusters and leaves and leading eventually to its death, Molnar said.

Although little can be done to save the tree once the infection has become firmly established in it, early treatment may prove successful, Molnar said. The tree should be examined annually for cankers and any wound should be cleaned and treated with a pruning type of paint.

Molnar said the disease can be prevented if the tree is allowed to adapt slowly to exposed conditions. This can be done by the gradual removal of surrounding vegetation, usually over a three year period.

* * *

Trees grown in commercial nurseries and forest trees established in open areas are not affected by the infection and although many dogwoods have been killed by it, the species is not threatened with extinction.

"We're not saying the tree is being wiped out," said Molnar. "We're just saying that if people want dogwoods around, they'd better care for them."

Labor Defiant Of Court Action

VANCOUVER (CP) — The B.C. Federation of Labor said Friday that tugboat picket lines will be maintained "regardless of the consequences" in the face of a number of contempt of court verdicts, one of which resulted in the sentencing of tug guild chief negotiator Arnie Davis to six months in jail.

"The picket lines will be maintained until this dispute is settled through negotiation of an honorable collective agreement," a labor statement said. "If guild pickets are removed forcibly or through jailings, leaders of the trade union movement, including members of this executive council, will take their place on the picket lines."

Said federation secretary Ray Haynes:

"The labor movement must maintain its trade union principles, regardless of the consequences."

Mr. Justice T. A. Dohm passed sentence Friday after finding Davis guilty Thursday of one count of contempt and the Canadian Merchant Service Guild, the towboat men's union, guilty of two.

* * *

Federation president Al Staley of Victoria described the jailing of Davis as "an extremely grave situation in which citizens are being persecuted for acting in accordance with their conscience and in accordance with principles recognized in the universal declaration of human rights."

The charges against Davis and the guild stem from contempt of an injunction granted MacMillan Bloedel that prohibited picketing at the company's pulp mill at Powell River, about 80 miles north of here.

* * *

In another case Friday, Mr. Justice J. A. MacDonald found the guild in contempt of an injunction granted Canadian Forest Products Ltd which banned picketing at its Eburne Sawmill in Vancouver. Two members of the guild were fined $25 each.

F. G. (Tony) Peskett, president of the Employers Council of B.C., commenting on Davis' sentence, said "we don't want to see damage suits or people going into jail."

"We want to see people back at work. There is no joy in seeing Capt. Davis go to jail. It is a very, very unhappy situation."

Despite the court decisions, negotiations were expected to

Postmen Get Recess To Work Up Package

OTTAWA (Special) — The federal government has given the 27,000-member council of postal unions a weekend recess of three days in which to prepare a package of counter-proposals on the numerous issues still outstanding in the long-simmering postal dispute.

During mediation sessions last week, the government put forward a new package offer, which included a revised wage proposal. The unions, however, have apparently refused to counter at all, but have insisted on dealing with the issues in dispute on an item-by-item rather than package basis.

To Avoid Drift to General Strike

Laxton Pleads for Truce

By IAN STREET
Colonist Legislature Reporter

CHILLIWACK — A labor-management truce was called for here Friday night to prevent what an NDP spokesman called the "unplanned and unintended" drift into a general strike in B.C.

John Laxton, the retiring provincial president of the party, told the 6,000 delegates at the opening session of the party's annual convention that the present labor-management situation is so serious that unless a truce is reached "we are in for a very very bad summer."

* * *

"We seem to be drifting into an unplanned and unintended general work stoppage because the rank and file union members have simply had enough bullying and harassment under ... Social Credit legislation.

"If something doesn't break soon, there will be labor-management explosion that will leave a scar on the province's economy for years to come."

Laxton told delegates there is only one way to settle a labor dispute and that is by rational discussion around a bargaining table.

* * *

"Settlements cannot be achieved by putting people in jail nor by seeking large damage awards or fines. When the battle is over, the parties have to go on living and working together in harmony. That is one significant fact of life that management must never forget.

"I would therefore like to suggest that there be a truce in all labor-management litigation for at least one month or whatever period can be agreed upon with both sides withdrawing from court in all disputes and undertaking to meet each other every day if necessary in the truce period to see if settlements can be reached."

Laxton ended his speech with an appeal to the convention to pass a resolution drawn along these or similar lines. He later told reporters that a special executive subcommittee was drafting an emergency resolution dealing with the labor situation which will be placed before delegates this morning.

Caucus Policy Paper Riles Union Delegates

Colonist Staff Reporter

CHILLIWACK — A statement signed by all 12 members of the NDP caucus stating they take direction only from the party membership and not from union leaders drew loud protest from labor delegates attending the party's annual convention here Friday night.

The document was read to the convention by Dave Barrett, the 39-year-old social worker who is seeking the party leader's job at a leadership convention here today.

* * *

In the debate which followed, one delegate representing the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers said the caucus statement was a slander on all trade unions because it suggested that unions do not reflect the wishes of the working people of the province.

Another angry labor delegate said the statement was tantamount to a charge that the trade union movement was becoming "an iron block around the ankles of the party." The delegate, who said he represented the plumbers' union, said "As a trade unionist and a socialist let me say that socialism without trade unionism is like a man without a wife. ## Wage-Brake Reaction Mainly Cool

WINNIPEG (CP) — Provincial finance ministers pledged varying degrees of support Friday for a federal program of pay restraint as a weapon against inflation.

The scheme aims to keep pay-increase settlements this year to a maximum six per cent.

A six-per-cent ceiling on wage increases is unacceptable to working men. However, Russell Bell, research director for the 1,650,000-member Canadian Labor Congress, called the ceiling unacceptable to working men.

* * *

Bell said the CLC will oppose the guideline "as strongly as possible."

Jean Beaudry, CLC executive vice-president, in Winnipeg for a meeting of the Manitoba federation of labor, said:

"It is evident that the government has declared open war on labor."

Gerald W. Baldwin, Conservative House leader, interrupted a Commons agriculture debate on a point of privilege after hearing the news.

He protested that Benson should have made a statement of this importance in the Commons itself.

* * *

He also objected that both Benson and Prime Minister Trudeau had implied in response to opposition questions earlier in the week that the government did not intend to introduce such a policy.

Max Saltsman (Waterloo), the NDP financial critic, said in an interview that although he had heard rumors of the government's plan earlier in the week he had "found it very hard to believe they would be so blatantly anti-labor."

Benson said compliance could be enforced by federal

Swiss Vote on Ousting of Aliens

ZURICH (UPI) — Swiss voters Friday cast their first ballots in a three-day national referendum to constitutionally limit the number of resident foreigners to 10 per cent of the population.

Supporters of the Schwarzenbach initiative urged a yes vote to save Switzerland's national character from destruction. Almost 1,000,000 foreigners live here in a 6,000,000 population.

The referendum's name comes from James Schwarzenbach, a 50-year-old deputy in parliament from Zurich who led the forces that collected 50,000 signatures in order to put the measure on the ballot.

If passed, the measure would force the government to supervise the expulsion of over 300,000 foreigners within the next four years.

Deliberate expulsion of ordinary working people and their families could severely harm Switzerland's international reputation, disturb relations with Italy — where the greatest number of the foreigners here originated — and complicate negotiations with the Common Market this fall, opponents said.

Crash Has Sequel

COURTENAY — An accident near Courtenay April 19, had a court sequel Friday, when one man was fined $250 for driving without insurance, and another was acquitted of impaired driving.

Receiving the $250 fine was Charles Traynor of Gold River whose motorcycle had been in collision with a car driven by Charles Edward Nichols of Courtenay.

Traynor sustained "quite serious leg injuries" in the accident, according to the police.

'SLURRED SPEECH'

Const. Gerry Carlson, testifying for the crown in the impaired driving charge against Nichols, told Courtenay Provincial Court he had smelled liquor on the accused when he was investigating the accident.

"He was unsteady on his feet and showed symptoms of impairment," Carlson said.

The officer said Nichols' speech was "slurred and garbled" and that he later failed to pass sobriety tests at the police office.

"I considered him to be moderately impaired but not advanced," Carlson stated.

He said Nichols had given him "a lucid account of the accident" and had co-operated with police. It was stated that Nichols had tried the accident in slippers and stocking-feet.

'BALANCE BAD'

The accused, represented by Henry Reddin, told court he had "had a couple of beers" before the accident. He said his leg had been broken twice and he had a fallen arch on one foot.

"My balance is always bad," he said, adding he "could have done the tests" if he'd been wearing boots at the time.

Nichols said he'd had his first cigarette in two years immediately after the accident and that it had made him dizzy for several minutes.

DOUBT AGREED

Reddin suggested there was room for doubt in the case.

"He performed these tests under a distinct handicap."

Judge John Ryland said he tended to agree there was doubt in the matter, but added "a couple of beers is a colloquialism these days."

He said there was doubt and the benefit of it had to go to the accused.

Couple Injured In Collision

Hospital spokesmen said Mrs. Ross is in satisfactory condition with a broken wrist. Ross was treated for lacerations to his forehead and leg and was released.

15,380 Ratepayers Will Decide Area's Future Today

Merger Vote Will Be Nanaimo's First

By LYNNE WALLER

NANAIMO — In 1874 the city of Nanaimo was first incorporated. The population was 1,500 and the first mayor was Mark Bate.

Today 15,380 ratepayers will be eligible to vote on amalgamation with five neighboring districts. If more than 60 per cent favor amalgamation, Nanaimo will re-incorporate, as the province's fourth largest city, with a population of 34,000, although some municipalities such as Saanich have a higher population.

The vote is the result of recommendations appearing in a study on local government which took regional staff almost two years to prepare.

The regional committee, formed to look into the state of local government in the area, found that in Nanaimo, Departure Bay, Northfield, Wellington, Harewood and Chase River, there are 25 different government agencies operating.

★ ★ ★

The committee was headed by Mrs. Beryl Bennett and its members were Steve Plecas of Harewood, Nanaimo Alderman Mrs. G. L. Hall, George Milford of Northfield and Mrs. Ada Howden of Wellington.

The 155-page report was compiled by regional staff who did their own studies and used information supplied by fire and improvement districts, the city, Greater Nanaimo Sewerage and Water Board and other organizations and firms with public functions.

The main point made in the report was that government was fragmented in Nanaimo and the five surrounding districts, yet, together, they formed one urban community.

The report said the Greater Nanaimo area was suffering because of the large number of government agencies, overlapping jurisdiction in some fields and absence of jurisdiction in other fields, a lack of uniformity in the standard of services provided by the different areas and a lack of over-all planning.

On May 6, Municipal Affairs Minister, Dan Campbell spoke at a Nanaimo Chamber of Commerce meeting and set today as voting day.

He said the vote would be held under section 18 of the Municipal Act which states that approval requires a 60 per cent over-all majority, rather than 60 per cent in each community.

★ ★ ★

If the referendum passes, an interim city council, with representation from all six communities, will be set up immediately and remain in office until the end of the year.

The minister said that if amalgamation took place, funds held in reserve by any of the communities must be specifically allocated for use in that community. Existing debts for local sewer and water systems would continue to be the responsibility of the individual communities for five years, although the services would be administered by the enlarged city.

After five years, the council of the day will decide whether the city will assume the sewer and water debts or continue the local charges.

Existing debts in the six communities, other than those for sewer and water, would be assumed by the new city upon amalgamation, said Campbell.

A group of 26 citizens formed the Citizens Committee for a New Nanaimo. Chairman Ted Barsby said he and the others felt that on such an extremely vital issue it was important for the residents of the area to be fully informed.

Barsby and executive members Bruce Meikle and Dave Stupich embarked on a speaking tour of the community, talking to people at improvement and fire district public meetings and privately to clubs.

★ ★ ★

The two major objections they encountered were from ratepayers, concerned their taxes would jump if amalgamation was approved, and from people who wanted more time to study the issue.

Gordon Wickham and Bert Ogden, two member of the citizens' committee, issued a statement supporting amalgamation but objecting to the speed with which the vote was called.

The committee ran into no organized resistance but this week learned that a group of people, unidentified so far, have been operating a counter-telephone campaign urging ratepayers to vote against the referendum.

An advance poll held this week attracted 409 voters, an unusually large turnout.

This is Nanaimo's first amalgamation vote although there have been four boundary extensions — in 1887, a small portion of the south end; 1927, Fairview district; 1946, a small portion of the south end and a section of lower Townsite.

In 1952, the city's area doubled when the boundaries were extended to include Brechin and Acacia. The addition of 3,500 people pushed the population of the city up to almost 11,000.

Barsby, a school trustee for six years and Nanaimo alderman from 1964 to 1967, said that for 12 years amalgamation had been discussed by public bodies in Nanaimo.

★ ★ ★

"The concept is not new," he said, but for the first time it had come to a vote because of the work of the regional district.

It was difficult to reach any conclusions before because of the sheer number of people involved in governing the area, he added.

Company Explains:

Cement Supply Ban Sought Settlement

Ocean Cement Ltd. made its decision to suspend all cement sales in the province in the hope that it would hasten settlement of the present labor disputes, a spokesman for the company in Victoria said Friday.

The formal statement from the company was issued as unionists increased the tempo of their protests over the company closure.

About 40 construction tradesmen paraded in front of the company's Wharf Street offices in Victoria Friday morning to demand restoration of local sales to independent contractors.

Duncan contractors have also protested the refusal of B.C. Cement at Bamberton to sell cement for concrete locally, while shipping large quantities to the United States. B.C. Cement is a subsidiary of Ocean Cement.

The company said it issued the statement to make its position clear.

"The company believes that it is against the interest of the community when unreasonably high wage increases, which can only result in further inflation of living costs, are granted," said the statement.

"For this reason, although the company is not a member of the Construction Labor Relations Association, it is in sympathy with the efforts of that organization to resist reckless, inflationary demands for unrealistically high wage increases being made by construction trade unions.

"Hence the company made the decision to suspend all cement sales in the province in the hope that it will hasten the settlement of the present serious labor-management disputes," contined the statement.

The spokesman answered recent criticism of cement shipments to Seattle, by saying that there is no labor dispute in that area, and the company has a legal agreement with an American firm to ship certain minimum quantities each month.

"Charges have been made that it is illegal for the company to withhold cement from the local market," continued the statement.

"The company has been advised it is not illegal and welcomes the proposed investigation by the department of consumer affairs to clear up this question."

★ ★ ★

Meanwhile Duncan unionists are preparing a motorcade and demonstration for Tuesday to bring attention to the Bamberton Cement plant problem, the tow boat strike, lack of welfare money and the problems of getting unemployment insurance.

The motorcade, which is being organized by the IWA, the Carpenters Union and the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada, will leave Duncan at 10 a.m.

MLA Bob Strachan will head a deputation to the Bamberton cement plant on the way.

The demonstrators will continue to Victoria to present briefs to the Unemployment Insurance Commission, Welfare Minister Philip Gaglardi and Labor Minister Leslie Peterson.

Tahsis Sawmill Closes Down

TAHSIS — Tahsis Co. sawmill at Tahsis, on the west coast of Vancouver Island, closed down Friday, putting about 350 men out of work.

About 100 men will remain at work for a while to operate the shipping and loading departments until current orders are filled, a company spokesman said.

He blamed the closure on the falling log inventory brought about by the towboat strike, and by the depressed state of the lumber market.

The mill, he said, would remain closed for at least two weeks and he expected most employees to take their vacation pay to tide them over.

Even if the towboat strike is settled, he said, the mill would remain closed until new markets were found.

Laundry Firm

Strike Favored

Nelsons Laundries in Victoria and Nanaimo were served with 72-hour strike notice Thursday and the 150 employees could legally strike anytime after Sunday.

A supervised strike vote among members of Local 580, Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Union resulted in 75 per cent of the voters favoring strike action.

Union representative Red Visser said Friday a strike would affect Nelsons Laundries both in Victoria and Nanaimo.

He said the union was willing to meet with the company to reach a settlement and avert a shutdown.

Port Alberni Trend-Setter

Garbage Truck Sets Makes Island Debut

PORT ALBERNI — The first garbage truck of its kind on Vancouver Island is now travelling streets and lanes in Port Alberni. Works officials think its' $32,500 price tag will be offset by its efficent and economic operation.

★ ★ ★

"Trucks like this are in use very successfully on the Lower Mainland," superintendent Len Crowshaw explained. "Vancouver has seven, Burnaby five, Richmond one and two more on order, and there's one on order for Kamloops.

"There is considerable economy of operation, and a great deal of time saved as well," he said. "A conventional truck of similar capacity would cost close to the $30,000 mark, and would not be as efficient as this one."

Crowshaw explained that the large unit cuts down by more than half the number of trips made to the dump.

"Time spent running back and forth to unload the truck is simply dead time," Crowshaw said. "This one holds more than twice as much as our present trucks and has an excellent compacting system.

"The compacting method used compresses the garbage to about one-fourth of the original volume. The diesel operation provides fuel economy, and auxiliary diesel drive for the hydraulic packing mechanism means the packing process goes on as the truck moves along. Automatic transmission is also a help where so many stops and starts are involved. You pick up time on the route with no gears to shift," he said.

The new truck requires only two men to operate it, while the regualr trucks currently in use need three. The matter of manning is being discussed with the union, Crowshaw explained.

★ ★ ★

A new departure in design permits the truck to be driven from two positions. There is right-hand, stand-up drive, which lets the operator step up from the sidewalk and go on the job, and conventional drive on the left-hand side for longer trips.

The new truck is still being operated on a test basis to decide its best capabilities for the city's garbage operation.

Two city employees were sent to Burnaby recently for on-the-job training on the mammoth garbage-gobbler.

Currently the truck is being operated with three men — the two special trainees and the usual pickup man on the route being covered — to see what problems might arist.

★ ★ ★

"We may be re-organizing some of the routes to take the greatest advantage of our new equipment," Crowshaw said. "But this takes some time. Changing routes is a complex business. The public must be advised of different times and days for pickup. However, we don't anticipate any problems."

Bursaries Due For Pupils

PORT ALBERNI — Port Alberni branch of the Canadian Mental Health Association is planning to establish bursaries for students wishing to take up careers in psychiatric sciences.

The announcement by Mrs. W. J. Corker, president, said the yearly bursaries, not less than $100, would be awarded to local graduate students.

Accelerated emphasis on prevention of emotional illness require more psychiatric nurses, social workers, teachers and others to work with disturbed adults and children, Mrs. Corker said.

Near Koksilah River

Monastery Grows In Valley

Photostory By KLAUS MUENTER

COWICHAN STATION — With the Koksilah River below and a seemingly endless tract of wooded land behind, three monks of the Community of Christian Brothers have begun to establish a monastery for soul-searching retreat.

●

Faith, hard labor and nature seem to blend into a creed which, although as old as man, has become alienated in the minds of many electronics-oriented people.

The three men behind the project are Brother Francis, Brother David and David Doerr, 19, who will become Brother Michael later this month.

Whie Brother David is on leave in the U.S., the two other members of the small community are just completing the first buiding which will house their living quarters and the monastery's dining room.

Already in the planning stage is another building which will include living quarters for men who desire a retreat from daily life, and a chapel.

★ ★ ★

All three are members of the Anglican faith. Doerr, originally from West Vancouver and for the past eight years of Duncan, joined the community a year ago after studies at the University of Victoria.

Brother David came from the U.S. about three years ago to establish communities of brothers across Canada, but later decided to remain in the Koksilah River Valley.

Brother Francis explained, "Each community is an autonomous unit with its own rules and regulations," and without dogmatic pressures peope will be able to spend peaceful hours in congenial companionship.

★ ★ ★

He said, "Men will be able to come here to physical rest and spiritual exercise. Through silence, meditation and thought they may again get in contact with themselves and with God." The brothers vow to common goods, celibacy and unity.

To keep their independence and integrity they make money by working out and pooling their earned wages. Brother Francis works at the Youbou sawmill. He maintains this type of work provides the link with people the church would not reach otherwise.

Now 29 years old, Brother Francis always wanted to be a monk. His desire stems from his early association with monks at San Francisco who educated him since he was in Grade 5.

He joined the Community of Christian Brothers 10 years ago. Now he holds a degree in theology and arts.

He said, "We keep abreast of anything that is new in the Christian world." Since coming to Vancouver Island he has been active in the community and until recently was a director of the Duncan and District Association for Retarded Children.

★ ★ ★

He said when he and Brother David arrived in the Duncan area they found part of the local clergy helpful, particularly one Anglican minister who is in charge of St. Peter's Church, a Lutheran pastor and Catholic priests.

Latest member of the community, Doerr said he met the brothers first at Maple Bay a little more than a year ago and he thought that in the community he could develop a relationship with God.

The two young men at the monastery enjoy the company of two dogs, Jerry and Martin, who accompany them daily down the steep bank to the crystal-clear water of the Koksilah River which at that point runs swiftly through a marble-like rock formation.

Firehall Plan Studied

PARKSVILLE — Proposals for construction of an addition to the municipal office building and firehall are being considered by Parksville village council.

The possibility of selling the present firehall, and building a new one, is also under study and a team of planning experts is to help with a decision on both buildings.

A special closed meeting will be held Tuesday when Dr. Howard McDiarmid, Alberni MLA, will discuss a number of subjects with council.

Tenders will be opened at 5 p.m. Monday for two projects. They include installation of approximately 2350 feet of six-inch water mains on Bagshaw and McCarter streets and Memorial Avenue and construction of a cement sidewalk on Memorial Avenue. Contracts will be awarded on June 9.

Invaded Natural Stands Need Care

By DIANE JANOWSKI

The provincial flower is taking a beating because of urban expansion.

An infection is striking and killing Pacific flowering dogwood trees in natural stands in areas where they have been disturbed by residential development.

★ ★ ★

Most losses to date, according to the insect and disease survey of the federal Forest Research Laboratory on West Burnside Road, have been observed at lower elevations on Vancouver Island, the Gulf Islands and the Lower Fraser Valley.

"It's wherever built-up areas have occurred," said Alex Molnar, head of the survey. "We've been aware of this for several years now, but it's increasing because the factors that bring it about have been intesnsifying."

The infection first occurs in the form of stem cankers — a crackling of the bark that allows an infectious fungus disease to eat into the tree.

It girdles the trunk, killing the bark and underlying wood. This cuts off the tree's food supply, causing a deterioration in flower clusters and leaves and leading eventually to its death, Molnar said.

Although little can be done to save the tree once the infection has become firmly established in it, early treatment may prove successful, Molnar said. The tree should be examined annually for cankers and any wound should be cleaned and treated with a pruning type of paint.

Molnar said the disease can be prevented if the tree is allowed to adapt slowly to exposed conditions. This can be done by the gradual removal of surrounding vegetation, usually over a three year period.

★ ★ ★

Trees grown in commercial nurseries and forest trees established in open areas are not affected by the infection and although many dogwoods have been killed by it, the species is not threatened with extinction.

"We're not saying the tree is being wiped out," said Molnar. "We're just saying that if people want dogwoods around, they'd better care for them."

VANCOUVER (CP) — The B.C. Federation of Labor said Friday that tugboat picket lines will be maintained "regardless of the consequences" in the face of a number of contempt of court verdicts, one of which resulted in the sentencing of tug guild chief negotiator Arnie Davis to six months in jail.

"The picket lines will be maintained until this dispute is settled through negotiation of an honorable collective agreement," a labor statement said. "If guild pickets are removed forcibly or through jailings, leaders of the trade union movement, including members of this executive council, will take their place on the picket lines."

Said federation secretary Ray Haynes:

"The labor movement must maintain its trade union principles, regardless of the consequences."

Mr. Justice T. A. Dohm passed sentence Friday after finding Davis guilty Thursday of one count of contempt and the Canadian Merchant Service Guild, the towboat men's union, guilty of two.

★ ★ ★

Federation president Al Staley of Victoria described the jailing of Davis as "an extremely grave situation in which citizens are being persecuted for acting in accordance with their conscience and in accordance with principles recognized in the universal declaration of human rights."

The charges against Davis and the guild stem from contempt of an injunction granted MacMillan Bloedel that prohibited picketing at the company's pulp mill at Powell River, about 80 miles north of here.

★ ★ ★

In another case Friday, Mr. Justice J. A. MacDonald found the guild in contempt of an injunction granted Canadian Forest Products Ltd. which banned picketing at its Eburne Sawmill in Vancouver. Two members of the guild were fined $25 each.

F. G. (Tony) Peskett, president of the Employers Council of B.C., commenting on Davis' sentence, said "we don't want to see damage suits or people going into jail."

"We want to see people back at work. There is no joy in seeing Capt. Davis go to jail. It is a very, very unhappy situation."

Despite the court decisions, negotiations were expected to

Postmen Get Recess To Work Up Package

OTTAWA (Special) — The federal government has given the 27,000-member council of postal unions a weekend recess of three days in which to prepare a package of counter-proposals on the numerous issues still outstanding in the long-simmering postal dispute.

During mediation sessions last week, the government put forward a new package offer, which included a revised wage proposal. The unions, however, have apparently refused to counter at all, but have insisted on dealing with the issues in dispute on an item-by-item rather than package basis.

To Avoid Drift to General Strike

Laxton Pleads for Truce

By IAN STREET
Colonist Legislature Reporter

CHILLIWACK — A labor-management truce was called for here Friday night to prevent what an NDP spokesman called the "unplanned and unintended" drift into a general strike in B.C.

John Laxton, the retiring provincial president of the party, told the 6,000 delegates at the opening session of the party's annual convention that the present labor-management situation is so serious that unless a truce is reached "we are in for a very very bad summer."

★ ★ ★

"We seem to be drifting into an unplanned and unintended general work stoppage because the rank and file union members have simply had enough bullying and harassment under ... Social Credit legislation.

"If something doesn't break soon, there will be labor-management explosion that will leave a scar on the province's economy for years to come."

Laxton told delegates there is only one way to settle a labor dispute and that is by rational discussion around a bargaining table.

"Settlements cannot be achieved by putting people in jail nor by seeking large damage awards or fines. When the battle is over, the parties have to go on living and working together in harmony. That is one significant fact of life that management must never forget.

"I would therefore like to suggest that there be a truce in all labor-management litigation for at least one month or whatever period can be agreed upon with both sides withdrawing from court in all disputes and undertaking to meet each other every day if necessary in the truce period to see if settlements can be reached."

Laxton ended his speech with an appeal to the convention to pass a resolution drawn along these or similar lines. He later told reporters that a special executive subcommittee was drafting an emergency resolution dealing with the labor situation which will be placed before delegates this morning.

Caucus Policy Paper Riles Union Delegates

Colonist Staff Reporter

CHILLIWACK — A statement signed by all 12 members of the NDP caucus stating they take direction only from the party membership and not from union leaders drew loud protest from labor delegates attending the party's annual convention here Friday night.

The document was read to the convention by Dave Barrett, the 39-year-old social worker who is seeking the party leader's job at a leadership convention here today.

In the debate which followed, one delegate representing the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers said the caucus statement was a slander on all trade unions because it suggested that unions do not reflect the wishes of the working people of the province.

Another angry labor delegate said the statement was tantamount to a charge that the trade union movement was becoming "an iron block around the ankles of the party." The delegate, who said he represented the plumbers' union, said "As a trade unionist and a socialist let me say that socialism without trade unionism is like a man without a wife. ## Wage-Brake Reaction Mainly Cool

WINNIPEG (CP) — Provincial finance ministers pledged varying degrees of support Friday for a federal program of pay restraint as a weapon against inflation.

The scheme aims to keep pay-increase settlements this year to a maximum six per cent.

However, Russell Bell, research director for the 1,650,000-member Canadian Labor Congress, called the ceiling unacceptable to working men.

★ ★ ★

Bell said the CLC will oppose the guideline "as strongly as possible."

Jean Beaudry, CLC executive vice-president, in Winnipeg for a meeting of the Manitoba federation of labor, said:

"It is evident that the government has declared open war on labor."

In Ottawa, Gerald W. Baldwin, Conservative House leader, interrupted a Commons agriculture debate on a point of privilege after hearing the news.

He protested that Benson should have made a statement of this importance in the Commons itself.

He also objected that both Benson and Prime Minister Trudeau had implied in response to opposition questions earlier in the week that the government did not intend to introduce such a policy.

Max Saltsman (Waterloo), the NDP financial critic, said in an interview that although he had heard rumors of the government's plan earlier in the week he had "found it very hard to believe they would be so blatantly anti-labor."

Benson said compliance could be enforced by federal

Swiss Vote on Ousting of Aliens

ZURICH (UPI) — Swiss voters Friday cast their first ballots in a three-day national referendum to constitutionally limit the number of resident foreigners to 10 per cent of the population.

Supporters of the Schwarzenbach initiative urged a yes vote to save Switzerland's national character from destruction. Almost 1,000,000 foreigners live here in a 6,000,000 population.

The referendum's name comes from James Schwarzenbach, a 50-year-old deputy in parliament from Zurich who led the forces that collected 50,000 signatures in order to put the measure on the ballot.

If passed, the measure would force the government to supervise the expulsion of over 300,000 foreigners within the next four years.

Deliberate expulsion of ordinary working people and their families could severely harm Switzerland's international reputation, disturb relations with Italy — where the greatest number of the foreigners here originated — and complicate negotiations with the Common Market this fall, opponents said.
